MEXICANS IN TWO NEW RAIDS ON BORDER

3 STRUCK DEAD BY BOLTS IN STORM

Lightning Kills Weymouth Man and Two in Lawrence; Several Hurt, and Much Damage Done

Three men were killed, one had a remarkable escape, and heavy damage was done in a thunder and lightning storm that swept over Eastern Massachusetts late yesterday.

Philip Delorey, a man 56 years old, was struck by lightning and killed in Weymouth.

In Lawrence, Fred Roessler and Albert King, of Methuen, were killed by a bolt of lightning on Lawrence Common. Their companion, Charles Miner, of Methuen, who stood close between them, was unharmed.

Roessler was killed outright. King was revived unconscious. He expired a half hour later at the General Hospital in spite of efforts to revive him with a pulmotor.

SWEPT UP VALLEY.

The double tragedy was the most serious result of the storm. It swept up through the Merrimack River Valley from Haverhill to Lawrence, Lowell and beyond.

When the storm broke Roessler, King and Miner were sitting on a bench near the pond in the Lawrence Common. They hustled to the shelter of a widespreading maple tree.

The bodies of each victim were severely burned, as though the bolt had cut across them just below the hips.

A REMARKABLE ESCAPE.

Miner's escape from death was regarded as an inexplicable freak of luck because the bolt had fatal effect on both sides of him.

Philip Delorey, the Weymouth victim, was having with Dominic Pecarro in a field on Green street and ran into a barn on the Jordan estate. He climbed an empty hayrack to wait until the shower had passed; Pecarro was by the side when the bolt crashed through the barn.

Delorey fell to the floor dead and Pecarro rolled over stunned.

Two other men, Elijah Sullivan and James Densembo, who had also taken refuge in the barn with a wagon and two horses, were stunned.

CATHOLIC CHURCH HIT.

The cupola of the Catholic Church in Weymouth was toppled over by a bolt which nearly wrecked the steeple as well.

The tannery of Buckman & Kean in Woburn was struck and Lawrence Murphy, an employee, who was working at a sink, was burned on both hands and arms, when the electricity followed the water pipes down into the building. The shed was on fire, but the blaze was extinguished by workmen.

The home of Arthur Klissly, at No. 12 Chisholm avenue, Brockton, was struck and damaged to the amount of $450, according to the police estimate.

The home of Harry Leduse, at Hyde Park was hit and damaged to the extent of $200. A fire followed which burned the greater part of the roof.

The waiting room of the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company at Arlington Heights was struck by lightning during the storm, putting the lights out and throwing the twenty-five persons in the room, many of whom were women and children, into confusion. No one was hurt. The bolt ran down an electric light wire into the building.

DAMAGE IN ARLINGTON.

In Arlington the lightning struck in several places, and a bolt did much damage in the residence of John Dressley at No. 74 Orchard place. It went down the chimney and knocked Mrs. Dressley down, but did not seriously hurt her. Lightning hit a tree in the yard of Dennis J. Collins on Schouler court and hit again in Locke farm, but no damage was done.

In Concord large hailstones fell and a high wind played havoc with the shade trees. A large tree on Bedford street was blown down, blocking the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway for two hours.

At Green Harbor village a large barn on the Ezra Smith estate was struck and burned to the ground with all its contents.

Stork Calls at Winchester and Leaves Papoose

A FULL-BLOODED Indian baby girl was born yesterday at Winchester Hospital.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Martin of Winchester, who, despite their every-day names, are real American Indians, according to the hospital authorities.

The infant aborigine is the first Indian born in the Winchester institution. But they are getting used there to racial extensions.

For the Indian arrival makes merely the fifth race now represented there by babyhood.

When the Indian came there were already an American baby, an Italian, a Scottish one and a negro in the hospital baskets.

With a papoose, a baby, a bambino, a bairn and a pickaninny in hand, Winchester Hospital is pretty proud.

PURCHASE OF POISON BY ORPET

Druggist Swears Accused Slayer of Marian Lambert Had Bought Pound Can of Deadly Cyanide

Court House, Waukegan, Ill., July 8.—Carl L. Kraft, a Lake Forest druggist, testified today in the Orpet murder case that he sold Orpet a pound can of cyanide of potassium on December 30. He said that the word "cyanide" was on the label. While he testified, Edward O. Orpet was hurrying from Lake Forest to take the stand to testify further concerning this purchase.

This is the first evidence produced by the State to show that the defendant ever purchased cyanide in any form.

The State rested its case at noon. The elder Orpet, arriving five minutes before, was not called.

Before court opened it became known that the prosecution had received a report that the cyanide kept in the greenhouse on the Cyrus McCormick estate, over which Edward O. Orpet, father of the defendant, has supervision, was not the only supply available to members of the household.

States Attorney Ralph J. Dady received a telephone call from Lake Forest informing him the elder Orpet had purchased two pounds of cyanide of potassium from Fraft's drug store in Lake Forest on December 30.

This eleventh hour information caused the attorneys for the State from despondency to jubilation. The defence has been coming strong in the last three days and has established that the cyanide in the greenhouse was not cyanide of potassium, but cyanide of sodium.

Kills Self in the Room in Which Wife Took Life

Pawtucket, July 8.—The body of Anthony Nuttall, 54, was found late this afternoon in a small room at his home, on South Union street, asphyxiated by illuminating gas. An open jet was found in the room. Near the body was this note:

> There does not seem to be anything but trouble for me in this life. As I do not seem to be able to stand it any longer, I will end it now.
> ANTHONY NUTTALL.

On June 22 Mrs. Elizabeth Nuttall, wife of the deceased, took her own life in the same room, and in the same manner. She was a clairvoyant.

DOCK FIRE PERIL IN WARNING BY TABER

New Haven Road's Sheds at South Boston Menace Waterfront, He Explains in Report

Deputy Chief Says Nothing Short of Deluge Could Stop Flames; Urges New Main and Fire Walls

Senior Deputy Chief John O. Taber of the Boston Fire Department, in a report made last night to Fire Commissioner John Grady, declares that the New York, New Haven & Hartford docks in South Boston constitute the worst fire hazard along the whole water front.

He recommends changes and improvements costing hundreds of thousands of dollars. Nothing short of a deluge, he declares, would stop a fire on these piers once it had a good start.

This is the third report he has made on fire conditions at the freight terminals of Boston. They were made because of the conditions at the Boston & Maine freight yards, published exclusively in the AMERICAN, following a disastrous fire last March.

MAKES IT EASY FOR ROAD.

Notwithstanding the severity of the report, in his introductory paragraph Chief Taber states that he has limited his criticisms and recommendations only to such conditions as the railroad may be expected to remedy without undue hardship.

To the AMERICAN last night he explained that in doing this he had in mind the financial condition of the road.

Chief Taber finds:

The water supply for fire purposes is wholly inadequate.

Water is usually turned off when most needed.

Chief Taber recommends:

The laying of hundreds of feet of 10-inch water mains and the installation of many hydrants.

The building of many fire walls and reducing the present enormous uninterrupted floor areas.

URGES FIRE WALLS.

Following is Chief Taber's report in part:

"It is well known that the greatest danger from fire lies in immense uninterrupted floor areas in which fire, once started, becomes very hard to control. It is also know that there is nothing better to check a fire than a good fire wall. It will at least temporarily stop the spread of fire and give the fire department a chance to make a stand.

"I therefore recommend that the railroad company be urged to erect dividing walls in these freight houses to reduce the large uninterrupted areas. Brick or other fireproof material is, of course, preferable but very substantial fire stops are constructed of double two-inch plank, tongued and grooved, and metal covered.

WOULD FEED FLAMES.

"Perhaps the greatest hasard we have at present on our waterfront is pier sheds Nos. 1, 2 and 4, fronting on Northern avenue, owned or controlled by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company.

"Pier No. 1 is two stories, of wooden construction. Standpipes with hose attached and water barrels are well located and the auxiliary fire alarm stations appear to be ample, but if fire once started and gained headway in this building nothing short of a deluge would stop it.

"Pier No. 2 of this group is of the

British Order in Council Tightens German Blockade

London, July 8.

AN Order in Council was issued today withdrawing all preceding orders made under the Declaration of London and issued since the war began. This action was taken in accordance with England's determination to tighten the blockade of Germany.

Paris today reported that the French government, following the lead of England, has abandoned the declaration of London for the same purpose.

Alleged Criticism by Woman's Club Members Stirs Up Hornets' Nest Over Melrose Hall

While our young militia is away at the Mexican border the Melrose Grand Army veterans have suddenly become at odds with the Melrose Woman's Club.

One of the chief grievances of the beloved veterans is that the Woman's Club members, who meet in Grand Army Hall, in the Memorial Building, have made sharp remarks about the veterans smoking pipes in their own post room while the women were in session in G. A. R. Hall.

On account of which, and other matters, the Grand Army men have petitioned the aldermen for exclusive use of Grand Army Hall, as well as of the post hall, which they now have. The aldermen have deferred decision until after hot weather.

PAY NOMINAL FEE.

Memorial Building, owned by the city, contains Memorial Hall, a public auditorium, Grand Army Hall, which is used by the Grand Army "Vets" for their monthly business meetings for a nominal fee of $1 per year, and a committee room, which is used by the "Vets" exclusively for cards, smoking and other social purposes.

The Sons of Veterans, Sons of Veterans' Auxiliary, Daughters of Veterans and Women's Relief Corps hold meetings in Grand Army Hall for $75 a year apiece.

But the Woman's Club, being an outside organization, pays $250 a year for use of Grand Army Hall. The Canadian Club and other societies pay from $15 to $30 a meeting.

The "Vets" complain that these outside organizations remove the benches and chatter of U. S. Grant Post 4 from the walls of Grand Army Hall during their meetings and leave them around on chairs.

VETS ARE "RILED."

But what "riles" the veterans is the feminine criticism of pipe smoking in the veterans' social room while Woman's Club sessions are on.

So, say the veterans, why not close Grand Army Hall to all organizations except the "Vets," of course, and the Sons and Daughters of Vets;" Relief Corps and such patriotic ones.

The question affects so many clubs, societies and such that the aldermen fail to see where they can possibly please all.

14 SHIPS LOST IN BIG GULF STORM

Mobile, Ala., July 8.—Fourteen steamships, large schooners and other vessels of size are known to have been lost in the vicinity of Mobile during the terrific hurricane of Wednesday and five steamers, six big sailing vessels and six smaller schooners were beached or wrecked.

Among the vessels lost are the government steamer Dauphin and the big schooner Emma Lord. The government steamer William T. Twynning and the Russian bark Grace Harwood were beached.

ALLIES WIPE OUT GERMAN SALIENTS

French Forces North of Somme Capture Town of Hardecourt; New Russian Gains in the East

Austria Now Officially Admits Retreat of Armies Along the Styr; Italy Claims Successes

By International News Service.

London, July 8.—The French and British, attacking simultaneously today, wiped out within thirty-five minutes, a strong German salient which had jutted dangerously into their new line north of the Somme.

By their concentrated attack they carried their front to and beyond the village of Hardecourt, on the Bapaume high road, three and a half miles southeast of Combles, an important German prov.sioning center. They have straightened out their front until now they hold a line which curves but slightly from Mountauban to Curlu and Biscourt, precluding flanking attacks by the Germans on what had been the flank of the Biscourt salient.

The attack was carried out under the most difficult conditions of terrain and in the face of determined German resistance. The allies also carried a small hill north of Hardecourt. The high ruins of the last few days have converted the battlefield into almost a bog and the treacherous ground is an almost insurmountable difficulty to the artillery, especially the heavier pieces.

In the east the Russians continued their advance, the Czar's armies capturing the towns of Gritsk, Letchnicjeka, Dolyzez and Gruzlatyn in the Czartaryst region, and taking 3,675 more prisoners. The Vienna official report admits the retreat of Austrian armies along the Styr.

The Italian offensive continues, also, Rome officially announcing that Italian troops are consolidating and pushing forward their positions in the Upper Adidge. Two Austro-Hungarian attacks at Monfalcone were repulsed.

BRITISH NIGHT REPORT.

Tonight's British report from General Headquarters in France follows:

"There has fighting today, principally on our extreme left, where further important successes were gained by our troops.

"East of the Bone de Barnapay, after a fierce preliminary bombardment, we stormed a line of trenches and gained lodgement in the strongly defended wood known as the Bone des Tronea. There we captured 130 prisoners and several machine guns.

"The French on our right flank greatly assisted the advance by the fire of their artillery. The enemy's losses from the combined Anglo-French bombardment was severe.

"A strong German counter attack in mass formation subsequently was launched across the open against these captured positions. It completely broke down under the fire of our 18-pounders and 75-millimetre guns. The enemy retired in disorder.

"In the neighborhood of Ovillers hand to hand fighting continues amongst the ruins of the village, but there, too, we have an appreciable advance.

"Despite the cloudy weather our aeroplanes and kite balloons did some useful work taking photographs and directing the fires of batteries.

"One of our machines, although disabled, sustained a running fight for twenty minutes with hostile aeroplanes, afterwards landing safely in one of our aerdromes. With this ex-

German People Believe Soldiers Will Soon Enter the Fortress of Verdun

By WILLIAM BAYARD HALE,
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

Berlin, July 8.

While officials are uncommunicative respecting the date of the expected entrance of the German army into Verdun, it is apparent the people generally believe the final scenes are near at hand.

Whatever may have been the original importance of possession of the famous French fortress, and whatever may be the actual strategic value now, the dogged defence by the French garrison and the equally resolute determination of the German besiegers have so tremendously enhanced the significance of the issue that the moral effect of the final result cannot fail to be of import surpassing that of any previous event of the war.

While all the world hangs on the issue of the battle now drawn out for more than four months, the people of Germany are confident that the fall of the stronghold is already certain and imminent, although expectations are sobered by the consciousness that costly work is still to be done.

GERMANY ASKS U S PROTEST

Boyard Hale, for the American, Secures Important Interview With Von Bethmann Hollweg

By WILLIAM BAYARD HALE,
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

Berlin, July 8.—His Excellency the Imperial Chancellor was much interested in my account of Independence Day, and what it stood for in America—or at least had stood for—forty years ago to a boy in an Indiana town, whose father had kept alive memories of the struggle for freedom from English misrule in which his family participated.

From a historical review of the American revolt against British domination of the western hemisphere the Chancellor animadverted to the subject of British domination of the open seas, against which no adequate remedy has yet prevailed. Doctor von Bethmann-Hollweg took the conversation into his own hands, saying:

"There was another declaration of independence which history will record as of importance, no less significant than the document signed at Philadelphia, July 4, 1776 — a manifesto issued by the great powers of the world of the present day, God's ocean to the people of whatever clime, who set sail upon its bosom on lawful errands. This proclamation of the freedom of the seas is known as the Declaration of London.

"REJECTED BY ENGLAND."

"It was subscribed to in London, of all places of the world, February 26, 1909. To its enunciation of principles ten nations pledged their 'Sanctus Hanoverus,' guaranteeing hereafter wars should be conducted solely between parties to them and on land or before actual ports of the enemy, leaving the nations not involved in the struggle to carry on unembarrassed and unannoyed those processes of peace, activities of legitimate trade, communication, as travel now as though all the world were friends.

"At the beginning of this war, August 6, 1914, the United States addressed the belligerent powers, inquiring whether they proposed to abide by this manifesto of ocean freedom. Promptly Germany answered that we did propose to do so, subject only to the qualification that enemy Powers would likewise adhere to it.

"The British government replied that they proposed to adopt generally the rules of the declaration, 'subject to certain modifications, which we judge indispensable to the efficient conduct of our naval operations.' In other words that they did not propose to adhere to them at all.

"This a regretful reflection with us in Germany, and surely must be a regret to the whole neutral world, that October 22, 1914, the United States government, through the Secretary of State, acquiesced in this declination

SNIPERS FIRE ON THE 9TH

Bullets from Mexican Side Go Through Camp of Bay State Boys; Extend Sweetser's Lines

By BERT FORD.

El Paso, Tex., July 8.—The two chief border developments today, so far as the Bay State troops were concerned, were notice that General E. Leroy Sweetser's lines were soon to be extended along the Rio Grande for sixty miles and announcement that Mexican snipers had fired a volley into the Ninth Regiment camp shortly after midnight last night.

As to the shooting, Colonel Edward L. Logan and Adjutant Thomas F. Murphy and Captain John T. Lawless, small arms instructor, said they heard the hum of bullets.

The outposts also heard them. The first battalion of the Ninth, Major Cases, went on cossack outpost duty tonight.

Ever since the Bay State guardsmen arrived there has been desultory firing on the Mexican side of the line, but last night was the first time the swish of bullets was detected. A skirmish is looked for any night.

ORDERS ARE SECRET.

The base quartermaster and his assistants worked until after 12 o'clock tonight equipping the Fifth Regiment, commanded by Colonel Willis W. Stover, preparatory to a change in border positions. Censorship restrictions prevent naming new destinations.

Distribution of entire new Summer equipment had been in progress in the Ninth, which had been about two-thirds outfitted when rush orders called distribution in the Fifth Regiment.

The announcement caused a stir throughout Camp Cotton. The tour is expected to last more than a fortnight.

The guarding of small towns will be a test for the Massachusetts boys, who are easier for the experience. It will be a step nearer the grind being performed by the regulars, and will be fraught with more discomforts than have been felt in camp.

GO-TO-CHURCH DAY.

Religious services are to be held in all the camps tomorrow. The Rev. M. J. O'Connor, chapain of the Ninth, has set up an aluminum altar under a cottonwood tree. Mass will be said at 9:30 tomorrow morning.

The Rev. H. Boyd Edwards of Milton, chaplain of the Eighth, will conduct an Episcopal service at 8:30 tomorrow morning, and the Rev. Layman Rollins of Marblehead, chaplain of the Fifth, will conduct a service at the same hour at an altar which he made himself.

At 5:30 tomorrow afternoon the Rev. Murray W. Dewart will conduct a field service at the Massachusetts Field Artillery at Camp Pershing.

RANGERS BATTLE BANDITS, KILL 14

Americans in Running Battle with Outlaws, Who Raid Ranch in N. Mexico and Steal Horses

Funston Orders Troops to Border Points Threatened by Bandits; Report New Battle at Jiminez

By H. H. STANSBURY,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, Tex., July 8.—The developments of the last twenty-four hours in "peaceful" Northern Mexico include two new raids on the border, hard fighting between Villistas and Carranzistas in Southern Chihuahua and the massacre of 200 Carranza soldiers by Yaqui Indians in Sonora.

1—Bandits crossed the Rio Grande near Boquillas and attacked the property of the International Mines Company. Three American employes of the company are believed to have been captured. The others are unaccounted for.

2—Mexican cavalry, crossed the boundary at Anapra, seven miles west of El Paso, raided the ranch of Tom Perrine and started away with forty-six horses. Perrine, with Jesse Adams and Alex Rivera, gave chase and engaged the Mexicans, killing fourteen in a running battle.

3—Mexican Consul Andreas Garcia and General Francisco Gonzales have received an official report of desperate fighting which is still in progress between the rear guard of Villa's army and Carranza's forces under Domingo Arrieta. Villa's main army is admitted to be much larger than previously indicated.

4—A force of Carranza soldiers and camp followers estimated at 200 men left to guard the Yaqui Valley when General Estrada mobilized his forces in the north, are reported to have been massacred by Indians. The soldiers not killed by gunfire are said to have been burned at the stake.

5—General Funston at San Antonio, hearing that Villa was raiding again in Chihuahua, has ordered Colonel Gaston at Presidio to send troops for the protection of Glen Springs and Boquillas. United States troops were also rushed from Marfa, Texas, to Terlingua to head off threatened raid of Villistas on Ojinaca, just across the border from Terlingua.

6—An aeroplane was dispatched to General Pershing from Columbus in response to word from him of renewed activities by bandits in the rear of the punitive expedition.

The first word of the Boquillas raid, which is a repetition of the Glen Springs incident, was received here in a telegram from John Denny, bookkeeper of the International Mines Company. He made his way during Friday night to Marathon, which is the nearest telegraph station. His message to the officials of the company in El Paso states Mexicans wearing the uniforms of Carranza soldiers attacked the American drivers of three of the motor trucks on Friday morning. This incident occurred just south of the border along the road which extends eight miles to the Boquillas Tecarmen mine. Definite information as to what happened to the three drivers has not yet been received here.

Villa on Raid; Funston Rushes Troops to Guard Border

MEXICANS ARE FLOCKING TO BANDIT CHIEF

Report New Battle Between Carranzistas and Villistas at Jiminez; Result in Doubt.

WAIT FOR DETAILS.

Later the Mexicans are reported to have crossed and attacked properties on the American side. Among the Americans with the group on this side of the border is Carl Halter, the young mining engineer who was captured in May with several others. Halter and his assistants escaped at that time by overpowering their guards, who had been allowed to fall behind the main band of the retreating raiders.

Denny's message said he expected additional information from the scene of the trouble some time tonight. The details lacking are being anxiously awaited by the officials of the company here.

Reports of a fight near Anapra, just across the border line in New Mexico, caused consternation in El Paso. A flying squadron of the Eighth United States Cavalry was rushed to the scene. Deputy Sheriff J. B. Kilpatrick and six other deputies also joined the pursuit. The surviving bandits escaped south of the International line.

A negro cook employed at Perrine's ranch, two miles south of Anapra, brought the information. He came here for ammunition and supplies. To General Bell he told this story:

"About 2 o'clock this morning we were aroused by flutes from the direction of the corrals. Mr. Perrine, Jess Lewis and Alexander Rivera, his two helpers, grabbed rifles and ran out. About forty Mexicans, all mounted, were driving horses out of the corral. They fired on Mr. Perrine and the other two men, forcing them back into the house for shelter. The Mexicans drove the horses off towards the border.

KILLED FOURTEEN OF THEM.

"Mr. Perrine, Lewis and Rivera got horses from Anapra and started after them shortly after dawn. He told me to hurry to El Paso for aid and ammunition."

Shortly after the negro had finished, Perrine called military headquarters here on the long distance telephone. The rancher was at Anthony, N. M., a few miles west of Anapra.

"We killed fourteen of 'em," he reported. "We were not even scratched. It was the prettiest fight I ever had. They opened fire but their bullets passed high above us. We got off our horses and began firing, using the animals for protection. My first five shots brought down three Mexicans. Lewis and Rivera were getting along as wisely. The bandits killed my horse but I kept on firing.

"The Mexicans got enough of it in a hurry. They left the horses and scooped across the border. We counted fourteen dead Mexicans after the fight."

Perrine formerly was employed as a border patrolman in the customs service. He is known in El Paso as one of the best marksmen in this country.

The official admissions from Carranzista sources that the rear guard of Villa's army has been able to stand and fight a brigade of cavalry under General Arrieta is accepted as significant by American army officers.

IS GAINING STRENGTH.

It is the official opinion that the forces attacked by Arrieta represented only the stragglers from the rebel army, who remained behind to fool Jimmez after the main force had started for Parral. The scene of the battle is just south of Jiminez.

Reports forwarded to General Funston, at San Antonio, early today, by Secret Service agents, credited Villa with the control of a formidable force. He is said to dominate the situation throughout Southern Chihuahua and the greater part of the State of Coahuila, where the greater part of the population regard him as the most influential leader in Mexico.

Refugees from the terrible onslaught of the Yaqui Indians brought the story of their massacre of Carranza troops to Nogales, Ariz., today. Early this week, they declared, a large force of "Bronco," as with Yaquis, fell suddenly upon the de facto troops and overwhelmed them. At least 200 of the Mexicans were killed, most of them by rifle fire, according to the report, but the Indians burned many Yaquis who are with the Carranza forces at Empalme, Sonora, it is said. Fear prevails that the "Bronco's" deed will inspire them to a revolt and repetition of the massacre.

First word of the Boquillas raid came in a dispatch received this afternoon by F. C. Moorehouse, president of the Puerto Mexico Mining Company, which has large properties there.

Considerable property was destroyed and three Americans were captured, according to the dispatch. Two days ago Mr. Moorehouse received a message from his agent at Boquillas, which said:

"Courier has just brought a message from Francisco Villa and he warns us that there will be another raid."

Today's message to Mr. Moorehouse said the raiders had destroyed much machinery at the mine and had blocked the path of communication. The bandits laid in ambush along the Boquillas road and trapped three Americans on their way to the mines. Three others are reported to have escaped.

TROOPS PURSUE BANDITS.

Word from Nogales says that a band of Mexican outlaws crossed the border early today and stole twelve horses from Eck's ranch east of that city. A company of California militia has started in pursuit.

General Funston is confident that Villa or his bandits will soon strike the border.

"If Villa is in the field again, and I do not doubt the reports that he is by reason of his prestige, he will come to hold his men together," he said.

A Villista force under General Calixto Contreras wiped out the Carranza garrison at Parral a few days ago, and hurried along the railroad from Parral to Jiminez, capturing the latter city, but later withdrawing from it.

Word of the approach of this force had reached the de facto government and 2,000 Carranza cavalrymen were sent to Jiminez, where, early today, the two forces came into battle.

General Francisco Gonzales, commandant of the Juarez garrison, announced this battle had begun, and said it was still undecided.

Discontent among Carranza's soldiers has weakened them as a fighting force.

SOLDIERS WOULD DESERT.

In addition to this, Carranza is once more faced with desertion of an army that seems to prefer adequate pay to service in pure faith. The complaint of the army against the two per cent peon was stilled with the prospect of war with the United States. But it has broken out in a roar and there are reports that the federal soldiers are looking forward to the coming of Villa and they may join him.

After Villa's force killed General Ramos and whipped the Carranzistas at Parral and again at Jiminez the military posts along the American border were warned to keep a keen lookout for the return of "Pancho." Then Carranza notified Washington that Villa was reported marching from Jiminez to Ojinaga.

Earlier official reports placed Villa with a force estimated between 1,500 and 3,000 men in Jiminez. There he seemed content for a while to rest and prepare his army, with its new recruits for new endeavors.

Washington Hears Villa Has "Recovered"

Washington, July 8.—The War Department today gave out the following statement with reference to the latest Villa rumor:

"Unspecified rumors were again received today of the presence of Villa at a place called Canutillo on Rio Florida, west of Parral. It is said that Villa's wounds were caused by a bullet that pushed through the back muscles of both thighs without striking a bone and that Villa has recovered sufficiently to walk with a limp and to ride with a pronounced limp.

"The presence of Villa again leading a force of revolutionists in Mexico is the phase of the Mexican situation now causing the greatest worry to State and War Department officials. If Villa continues toward the border officials fear a new outbreak of border raids will be encouraged that may again precipitate a crisis in Mexican affairs.

The suggestion of a joint commission to compose the situation along the boundary has not been officially proposed by either government. It may be one of the questions discussed by Acting Secretary Polk and Mr. Arredondo.

Another question under discussion is the necessity of holding a second military conference on the border similar to the conference between General Scott and General Obregon at El Paso and Juarez. This will be necessary, officials said, if it is decided to place in operation any movement for joint military patrol of the border by American and Mexican troops.

Reports from the border today that the aeroplane equipment has again failed were disquieting. Coupled with these reports were advices indicating that a large body of Villistas is advancing toward Ojinaga and the small American settlements in the Big Bend country.

Unless General Funston can repair the damaged aeroplanes to make them available for scouting purposes it is admitted by army officials he may find it difficult to locate the extended point of attack of any band of raiders.

General Funston is known to have twelve disabled aeroplanes at the Columbus base. He will be urged to get some of this number in operation at immediate scouting duty.

Insist on Care in Picking Recruits

By International News Service.

Washington, July 8.—The following instructions were sent out today to department commanders by the War Department:

"For States which have adopted standard medical examination prescribed for the regular army, the officers and enlisted men will be mustered into the service without further medical examination previous to such muster. Immediately after all officers and enlisted men will be medically examined and any found disqualified for the military service will be immediately discharged."

This order was inspired, it is understood, by fear that the militia rolls will be clogged with unfit men by reason of recent modification of the rules concerning medical examination. Restrictions as to examinations were removed when steps were being made to rush troops to the border.

Now, since the need for haste apparently has passed, the new order was given to provide for examination of the men who escaped before, and those now found to be below standard will be sent back from the border.

Repeat Charge That Carranza Saved Villa

By International News Service.

Washington, July 8.—Corroborative evidence to support the charge made in Secretary Lansing's note of June 20, that Carranza officially harbored Villa after the Columbus raid, was given to the War Department by Major Frank Tompkins today. Major Tompkins led the first detachment across the border at Columbus after Villa. He also was with the cavalry detachment turned back at Parral by Carranzistas.

Today he told War Department officials the United States cavalry was within a half-day's march of Villa when the American troopers were ordered to Parral.

Villa's capture was certain, Major Tompkins reported. The inference was that the American troops were stopped by Carranzistas to prevent them from capturing the bandit leader.

Major Tompkins was in Washington en route to Vermont on detail to instruct the First Vermont Cavalry. He refused to talk, information for from other sources it was learned he made a complete report on the Parral incident, showing Carranza's responsibility for the failure of the drive to catch Villa.

Trail Incendiary Suspects at Border

El Paso, Tex., July 8.—Secret service operatives have uncovered what they believe to be a gigantic incendiary plot here and have under surveillance the two chief leaders in a gang that fired the big army supply warehouses and garages here.

The fire "barbecue," as it is called by the secret service operatives, is a band of Mexicans, who have been working. It is believed, under instructions from the other side of the Rio Grande.

After the fire at Fort Bliss and the El Paso Country Club, General Bell, in command at Fort Bliss, began an investigation.

Signs of incendiarism were found and two more fires followed, and in the investigation of one of them the secret service men identified the two alleged leaders of the gang. In their work they are believed to have used an automobile of a make common enough to shield it from undue notice. In this oil and tinder were carried, and in the machine the torch bearers of the "fire brigade" escaped each time.

Refugees Protest Orders to Flee Mexico

By International News Service.

On Board Transport Sumner, Tampa, Fla., July 8.—The American refugees quarantined aboard the United States transport Sumner have taken steps to send a protest to President Wilson against what they term the utter disregard to American interests shown by the State Department in ordering Americans precipitately to leave Mexico.

Special Agent James Linn Rodgers in Mexico City and Consul Canada at Vera Cruz ordered all Americans to leave, warning them that conflict between Mexico and the United States was inevitable. The refugees say it was only on these representations that they obeyed. Many fled the country with only the clothes they had on their backs.

Latest Note Pleases Mexican Officials

By International News Service.

Mexico City, July 8.—Official announcement was made today that Foreign Minister Aguilar had received the reply of the American government to the latest note sent by the Mexican government to Washington.

The reply was received late last night, it was stated.

The American reply seemed to be highly satisfactory to the foreign officials, who said they expected a complete settlement to be reached.

SOLDIER FANS WATCH EIGHTH AT BASEBALL

Two Games Afford Saturday Amusement at Camp Corton —League Arranged.

Camp Cotton, El Paso, Texas, July 8.—There were two games today by Eighth Regiment boys, one between C and E companies won by the former by a score of 12 to 11. It was umpired by Major I. W. Cutter, of the hospital corps, who is an old Harvard catcher.

The other game was played by the hospital and supply company teams, won by the former, 9 to 7, and umpired by Lieutenant William A. Meade, of A company.

The game between C and E Companies attracted a lot of attention, as both teams were evenly matched. Corporal Edgar McCloud pitched for C Company, with Musician Murphy behind the bat. The battery for E Company were Private Hoyt, pitcher, and Corporal Davison, sergeant Carnell, on third, was captain of the team, and the shotstop was Private Dolan, formerly employed in the city of Boston printing plant.

A new baseball schedule was arranged today by Lieutenant W. A. Lillard of I, Company, former coach at Colgate college. There are six teen teams, four to each of the three battalions and four from headquarters. They will play for battalion championship, then for regimental championship and later with some of the regular teams and semi-professionals in this vicinity.

Harvard Students Begin Training as Air Pilots

Ten Harvard students will start their studies in aviation on Monday when they take their first lesson in flying at the Curtiss school of Aviation in Buffalo, New York.

The college men are to endeavor to qualify for a license as aero pilot after eight weeks in the school under the tutelage of Lieutenant Philip Rader, who was a member of the Royal Flying Corps in England for two years. The money for the instruction of the flyers has been obtained by subscription from graduates more than $1000, having been raised so far. When more funds are available ten more of them will join the Buffalo contingent. Each man deposits $50 as an evidence of good faith, this sum to be forfeited if the student gives up his studies while at the school or fails to receive his license at the end of the stated eight weeks' practice.

Undeniable Truth

When I established this office I promised to give the people relief from the oppressive measures adopted by undertakers to take advantage of grief-stricken people. I have kept that promise to such extent that my business has grown fourfold and thousands of sceptics now praise my work.

I promise service than had been procurable in the city before, at lower cost, and for a like price to everyone, regardless of their means. I am fulfilling this pledge every day, and no man can say he paid me more for casket or service than I charged anyone else.

I am doing a great work for the people, saving them thousands of hard-earned dollars, and supplying beautiful, dignified funerals at one-half the cost they would be obliged to pay other undertakers.

I deserve your patronage.

STATE PAY IS FOR SOLDIERS, SAYS M'CALL

American Helps Bay State Boys on Border Get Funds Ordered Into the Company Treasuries

As the result of information given by the AMERICAN to Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole, more than $45,000 sent to the Bay State soldiers at the Mexican frontier by the State of Massachusetts will be paid directly to the men instead of being turned into the company funds, as had been planned by the company commanders.

The State of Massachusetts, by order of Governor McCall, contributed $1.65 a day to each of the 5000 Bay State militiamen for the period of eight days from the time the men were called by President Wilson until they were mustered into the National Guard in the service of the United States Government.

FORD WAS WATCHFUL

Bay State troopers are paid $1.55 a day when serving the State. In the federal service they are paid but 30 cents a day. Impressed by the fact that one of the ultimate results of their patriotic service would be an immense financial loss, Governor McCall ordered that the men be reimbursed the difference by the State for that eighth day period.

Captain Horace Parker of the Quartermaster Department was sent to El Paso with the money. Shortly after Captain Parker's arrival, Bert Ford, one of the American's staff of reporters at the front, wired back that the men were somewhat discontented, because the money was to be turned into the company funds by the commander.

This report was called to the attention of General Cole. "That money was appropriated for the men and must go to the men," declared General Cole. F. promptly sent this instruction by wire to Captain Parker:

"The money should be paid directly to the man instead of into company funds."

General Cole today received a wire message from Captain Parker that the officers now are "disappointed."

"I can't help that," said General Cole, "the money must go to the men. The order by which the money was appropriated specified that it was for them.

BELONGS TO THE MEN.

"Company funds are useful in purchasing supplies and necessaries for the men and company commanders should be encouraged to establish them but in this case we must not lose sight of the fact that many of the men with families at home gave up lucrative salaries to serve their country and that they can devote the money, which is rightfully theirs, to a very useful purpose.

"If it seems absolutely necessary to raise company funds, I will ask the Governor's Council to make a special appropriation from the emergency fund at their disposal."

BATTERY'S BANK ROLL HELPS ALL

Rich Fathers of Boston Artillerymen Provide Fund for Emergencies of Sons and Comrades

BY BERT FORD.

El Paso, Texas, July 8.—Battery A of the First Massachusetts Field Artillery, the wealthiest and most aristocratic company unit of the Bay State troops on the Mexican border, is proving the Good Samaritan to the Massachusetts artillerym: n.

A fat fund has been deposited in an El Paso bank by the fathers of the past and present college men who make up this battery. This fund is not to be confined to Battery A, but will meet the wants of the entire artillery regiment from the Bay State, and in emergency may be used for any unit from Massachusetts that finds itself in straits in the event of hostilities.

In fact, ice and other necessities already have been purchased for the Ninth and Eighth and Fifth Regiments and for Bay State boys suffering from heat exhaustion.

STARTED IN BOSTON.

Back of the Battery A deposit in an El Paso bank is a philanthropic movement which started in Boston and about which the local agents are reluctant to talk. The President's call had scarcely been sounded when a group of Boston's most prominent citizens met and formed the "fund Massachusetts field artillery regiment supply and communication committee."

The committee is made up of the wealthy fathers of A Battery men, those who could finance the mobilization of the National Guard on the border themselves. There were present at the meeting John H. Storer, of Waltham, member of the Sears Corporation, whose son, Theodore L. Storer, is a private in Battery A; United States Senator John W. Weeks, whose son C. Sinclair Weeks of West Newton is a sergeant; Charles S. Penhallow of the Somerset Club, whose son, John H. Penhallow is a corporal; Edward W. H. Hutchins, of the Sears Building, whose son Edward is a private; Thomas W. Lawson, whose son Douglas Lawson is a sergeant; Colonel J. C. R. Peabody, of Groton and Beverly Farms, whose son Richard P. Peabody is a private; Former Attorney-General Herbert Parker, whose son George A. Parker is a lieutenant, and others of note.

Colonel Peabody and Mr. Parker are on the executive committee. While information is hard to obtain here, it is known that the object of the supply and communication committee was to make sure that the First Regiment of Artillery from Massachusetts should be properly equipped and supplied at all times and that a careful chronology be kept for historical purposes.

CARE FOR FAMILIES.

But more important than this were the provisions made for the wives and children and other dependents of men in the other batteries of the regiment who came from the ordinary walks of life and whose wages were their only sustenance. Every man in the regiment has filed cards setting forth his domestic status, and since only a number of needy households have been aided through the personal direction of Colonel J. C. R. Peabody at his Boylston street office.

Charles A. Randlett, graduate of West Point and long prominent in military activities in Massachusetts, arrived here last week almost as early as the first Bay State units and set up an office in a business block. That Mr. Randlett was the personal agent of the Battery A Supply and Communication soon leaked out from his visits to the artillery.

Mr. Randlett admitted today that he is here on an important civil mission, and will stay as long as the Massachusetts troops stay, but declined to discuss his work here.

Lexington Women Making Outfits

The women of the Lexington Branch of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness have enthusiastically started upon relief work for troops on the Mexican border. The members are making flannel abdominal bands for every member of Companies K and M, Eighth Regiment, of Somerville. Lexington's only militia is enlisted in the Somerville companies. After the bands have been completed the women will make mosquito canopies for the companies.

The next meeting of the Lexington branch is planned for Wednesday afternoon in the Buckman Tavern. Mrs. William P. Martin, chairman of the branch, will preside. The Lexington women intend also to make surgical dressings for our soldiers. Work for the allies has been temporarily halted until the needs of the United States troops have been cared for.

Members of the Arlington Branch of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness have also started relief work for the United States troops.

Troops Do Not Mind the Heat So Much as the Lack of Cigarettes.

By BERT FORD.

American Staff Man with Brigade Headquarters and the Massachusetts Troops at El Paso.

Camp Cotton, El Paso, Tex., July 8.—It's a long way from Camp Whitney to Camp Cotton, but except for the fact that armed Mexicans exist and have their being only about seventy-five yards away, and the temperature averages about 110, and a few other minor things, there is little difference.

As a matter of fact, a person who had visited Camp Whitney would find very little change in Camp Cotton. The Mexicans bother the boys not a whit, and except for a slight regret that they are unable to take a shot at them, the Massachusetts troops ignore the "Spigs," as they call them.

Now and then, of course, something arises to bring home to the men that they are on the edge of war. The troops play baseball, despite the heat, in the open space between the camp and the outposts. Occasionally some enthusiast Ty Cobb takes a healthy swing at the ball and knocks it into No Man's Land between the two outposts.

On such occasions there is considerable animosity manifested toward the Mexicans, who at these times divert attention from the umpires.

PLAY AGAINST MEXICANS.

Today there is a big game scheduled between a team composed of regulars and a nine made up of several Mexicans who are said to be classy ball players. The Mexicans had better reign themselves to defeat, because, as Cook Burkhardt of F Company of the Eighth remarked, if the regulars don't beat them, we will.

One of these was Joseph Nason of the Twenty-third and another was George Newton of the Seventh.

I. Company has been on outpost duty, and the members of the company feel they are perfectly capable of coping with the Mexicans. They would like their Malden friends to know that they have reorganized the club house over the Bandstand (Continued on page 2, col. 1)

Charles H. Bishop, known as Jake Lube, who ran in the Boston Marathon in 1912, now is a guard at a Norwegian steamer that was blown up in the English Channel and joined the convoy. He fought in the Boer war and was in Manila.

Harold J. Campbell, a former musician of Company I, has since more taken up and Corporal John H. Lawler, who was at Aztec, when the call for mobilization went out, reported last week. Lawler, who is a Spanish war veteran, joined the Colors. David Berg, asking that his place be kept open for him.

The Fifth had one big chance at Columbus, N. M., but except for the farthest end of the camp, next toward what is known as the Island. This is land that was formerly under the Rio Grande, but was left when the course of the river changed.

There are no single sentries, as in the olden days, and to a great extent Cossack outposts are used. These consist of a corporal and three men and they are generally stationed behind some cover.

At some of the posts the men have dug earlier trenches, so that in case of attack they can hold their ground until reinforcements reach them. Several of the posts are located behind trees where the men are screened from sight of the Mexicans, although the men can see everything that goes on on the Mexican side. At some places it is even possible to hear the "Spigs" talk.

It is customary for one man to take up a position in the tree and report all movements of the Mexicans to his corporal, who notes it and turns it in to the officer of the guard. The men relieve each other at this duty, and it is not necessary for all to stay in a tree at one time.

I had the interesting experience of crossing the border with a detachment of the Eighth that went out to mark the electrons of the territory. The detachment, from C Company, consisted of Lieutenant George R. Elliott, First Sergeant W. N. Davison and Sergeant C. L. Ferguson, all graduates of the training school of the Massachusetts Militia, and Privates Honea, Whaples, Larcombell, Dolan and Mickle, expert riflemen.

Lieutenant Elliott's equipment consisted of a rectangular piece of pine board, about three feet long by ten inches wide, to which was tacked a sheet of white paper. He also carried a compass, while one of the men had a pick handle, which was to be used in a tripod.

The rifles of the men were inspected, the word was then given and we were off. The line of march led through the company street into the open country in the direction of the Rio Grande and Nogales. At this point the Mexicans are on the same side of the river as the American troops and the shacks in which their outposts live are clearly discernible from the company street with glasses.

MAKE SKETCH MAP.

We passed various posts and at length reached a Cossack post station, where Lieutenant Elliott came close to the border, which at this point is marked by an iron pipe set into a concrete base. One of the sentries who was perching in a tree reported that the Mexicans appeared to be uneasy, but Lieutenant Elliott and his men went on with their work undisturbed.

They crossed the border and began their map making, while the riflemen knelt beside them and drew beads on the Mexicans, who could be seen burrowing in the sand on the other side of the canyon, which housed their outposts. One of these huts was made of wood and the second of adobe. A number of women could be seen, apparently doing house work.

Lieutenant Elliott began to sketch the territory in the direction of the American camp, which meant that he and the sergeants were forced to turn their backs to the Mexicans, who by this time had sent riders hurrying along the line of sentries, waking them into activity.

The board was first placed on the pick handle, and north and south marked on the paper. A compass was then placed on the board, which was turned or oriented until the north of the sketch was in the proper position. A sighting was then taken to the next stop or station, and an indefinite line drawn on the paper.

BOTHERED BY SAND.

The distance was secured by pacing, the pace units having been determined last year at West Point during the training school encampment. Another station was then sighted, an indefinite line drawn, paced and checked off, and so the work continued.

While the traverse, as it is called, was being made, all features of military importance, whether works of nature or man, were represented on the sketch by the use of conventional signs.

On a map such as these will make, positions can be shown in detail, such as single trees, barbed-wire fences, cultivated areas, character of roads and buildings, railroads, bridges and streams. There were no hills, but these could also be represented on military maps by a system of lines which form a result and represent the cutting of the earth's surface by imaginary horizontal planes passed at regular intervals above sea level.

After the detail had completed the work of sketching the line of outposts it returned to camp and the sketch was turned over to Lieutenant Julian S. Chamberlain of General Sweetser's staff. He took the three sketches and consolidated them, the result being a twelve inches to the mile map, which is the largest scale on which a military map is made.

Lieutenant Chamberlain is a Boston architect, who is instructor of military topography at the training school and Harvard regiment, and lecturer on the subject of military science at Harvard.

The men are bothered by the many sandstorms which visit the camp, making it impossible for anyone to keep ahead. For instance, Captain James P. McDade of A Company, Eighth Regiment, had just taken a bath one other day, and upon going to the street when a dust storm came up which covered him with dirt. These storms have a tendency also to clog up the South African water lines which many of the officers use.

These bags are made of some woven material. They are filled with water and then immersed. After they are thoroughly wetted outside they are hung in the air, and in a short time the water which they contain becomes and remains cool.

The men are allowed considerable liberty and may leave camp on the discretion of their commanding officer. It is necessary, however, for them to start back at 5:30 p. m.

HAVE CAMPAIGN SONG.

The men of C Company of the Eighth are somewhat saddened because of the inability of Sergeant Ernest L. MacLeod to be with them.

He underwent a minor operation shortly before the militia was mobilized and has been in the hospital four months. Sergeant MacLeod only enlisted in the hone that he could secure active service, and he is reported to be eating his heart out in Boston despite all his comrades.

The men are looking forward impatiently to the time when the recruits will arrive from Framingham. Captain Charles H. Blaisdell, formerly of the Eighth, and the men who presented the rabbit's foot to the officers of that regiment, arrived here the other day, and reported the recruits are drilling daily and fast getting into form at Framingham. Captain Blaisdell was appointed a special instructor at the Framingham camp but was forced to leave because of business reasons.

The machine gun company of the Eighth has organized a machine gun squad in command of Corporal David Duncan, a former Harvard football player. Six motorcycles are on the way and when they arrive the two new fighting units will be complete. The machine gun company has forty-nine men, with four officers. They are Captain William G. Renwick, who collected $2,000 for motorcycles, Lieutenant Roger Merrill, Lieutenant Hugh C. Blanchard, who was married at Framingham the day before the troops left, and Lieutenant Orville Johnson, a Harvard man who got his commission the night before leaving Framingham.

A large number of C Company, Eighth Regiment, officers and men, were connected with the training school of which Willis W. Stover of the Fifth was commandant. Captain H. Dwight Cushing was a tactical officer and instructor. Lieutenant Elliott, when a sergeant, was high man in the first graduating class. The present graduating class, which would have graduated had it not been for the mobilization, contained Sergeants Davison and Macleod, who is at home, and in the junior class were Sergeants C. J. Ferguson, A. F. Bullock, J. R. Faunce and A. F. Ferguson.

Appointments have been made in the company from Haverhill which boasts that it has the finest quartermaster in the service in the person of "Ed" Hoyt of Newburyport. Corporal T. A. Paine has been made sergeant, and Privates A. J. Noyes and Walter E. Brock have been made corporal and lance corporal, respectively. Like all military outfits, F Company has its song writers, including Major Campbell and the officers of the third battalion. One of their songs, which is making a great hit, is sung to "Hit the Line for Harvard" and runs:

We'll hit the trail for Villa,
We're Yankees through and through.
We'll show the sons of Weales
What the U. S. A. can do.
We come from Massachusetts,
Victory or die!
So give a grand old cheer, boys,
As the Eighth goes marching by.

Post exchanges and canteens where soft drinks will be sold have been started in each regiment, together with officers' clubs, and the Y. M. C. A. intends to erect buildings where the men may read and write, impervious to the dust storms.

TROUBLE OVER MAIL.

There has been a great deal of difficulty in regard to getting mail. At first it was all sent to Fort Bill, seven miles from the camp and the chaplains were forced to go after it. Then it was decided to handle all the mail for the Massachusetts troops from the general postoffice, and for a day or two there was a great deal of confusion.

Major William J. Keville of the Third Battalion of the Eighth is one of the happiest men in camp. He has received a silver watch, suitably inscribed, from Colonel Edward H. Hardedge, retired, who is his business partner and the old major of the Third Battalion. Major Keville entered Colonel Eldredge's office as a boy and served under him as a private in the Spanish war.

One section of Jamaica Plain must have been denuded of young men because the hospital corps of the Fifth contains a large number of them. They are Sergeant Harold B. Tookey, Sergeant Lawrence P. Larson, First Class Private Preston Ellis and Privates Jean Lang, Walter V. Campbell, Charles F. Hener and John J. Lavie. As it happens their first class sergeant is a Charlestown boy, William J. Murphy.

FIFTH TO LEAVE EL PASO FOR A MARCH OF 50 MILES

Bay State Men May Go on Patrol Duty; Must Leave Camp Just Set in Order.

By HARRY A. BENWELL.

Camp Cotton, El Paso, July 8.—The Fifth Massachusetts Regiment today received orders to prepare to leave the camp for border duty.

The regiment will pull out on Tuesday morning for a fifteen days' hike along the border, but for military reasons the exact destination cannot be given. They are going about fifty miles out. The outfit is being sent out in order that the men may get hardened and seasoned, and there is a possibility that they may be put on the border patrol, thus relieving some of the regular troops. Other State troops will follow the Fifth shortly.

The men were jubilant when they learned the news, despite the fact that they were just getting comfortably settled in camp.

Colonel Willie W. Stover, the commanding officer, had just taken possession of his new home, a large wooden structure, with screened sides and a canvas roof, with sleeping quarters on one side and office on the other. The cots, officers of the regiment had also secured similar but smaller dwellings, and these of course they will have to give up while they are out on the border.

Colonel Stover secured four carloads of cinders which he had distributed through the camp and officers' streets, making it possible to walk about without, becoming mired, as is the case all through the camp since the two rainstorms.

Chaplain Lyman Rollins had also completed an altar, built by himself and men of the company, and placed before his tent next door to Colonel Stover. It would have been possible for him to have had an altar sent down from Boston, but as he is something of a cabinet maker, he turned to with some of the men and completed the work shortly before retreat today.

PLAN BASEBALL GAME.

The altar was hung with green cloth which the chaplain brought with him from his church at Chelsea in Marblehead, and the lettering on it was done by sergeant Wise of the machine gun company. Chaplain Rollins also had a cross constructed, which was covered with green cloth, and tomorrow morning will hold services. The men of Catholic faith in the regiment will attend mass celebrated by Fr. O'Connell of the Ninth.

The chaplain is a baseball fan, and he has secured the colonel's permission to get up a baseball game tomorrow afternoon. He believes with Colonel Stover that if the men go to church in the morning they should be allowed a little relaxation in the afternoon, and this will be given them.

By the way, headquarters officers' street is restricted, no houses costing less than $12 being allowed, according to Colonel Stover. The officers' houses present an extremely neat appearance with their screening, wooden floors and screen doors, on each of which is a sign with the name of the commanding officer. These houses are the same as those occupied by the Twenty-third and Seventh regulars.

The lumber for them did not arrive until late yesterday, and they were rushed through to completion today, only to find that the regiment was to leave camp.

Tonight Private Preston A. Ellis of the hospital corps gave a concert on a violin which was presented to him by Boston friends.

All money that was due to the boys of A Company for eight days' camp duty that was in the hands of Captain Horace Parker, upon vote of the men, was sent to a tavern to the boys of A Company today. This act of the officers of A Company was highly appreciated as the boys were on the verge of bankruptcy.

We were visited by one of the most famous of the many famous correspondents that have made Mexico famous, namely, Thekli Flood Motenson, just out of Mexico, a personal friend of Villa, who intends to start for Parral tomorrow to locate "Pancho" or find his grave.

The entire Fifth continues to live up to the reputation of not a man sick or home-sick. Of course, the last is subject to some modifications.

Western Massachusetts Boys Get Taste of Real Service on Guard Duty.

By WILLARD H. DAVIS.

Columbus N. M. July 8.—The crack machine gun company of the Second Regiment consisting of fifty men under the command of Captain Ernest Berger created the only excitement at camp "Bernard" camp that mysterious place on the border today when they went out into the foothills for practice with those "Belgian rattlesnakes."

The men took four machine guns with them and about 7500 rounds of ammunition. It was an all day session and a day well spent for the boys did excellent work riddling the targets to shreds.

Some of the men who showed up well during the practice were Sergeant W. C. Day, prominent athlete and former inspector of permits in Springfield; Sergeant A. M. Foley, Corporal E. J. Sheer, gunner of one of the squads; Corporal R. W. Waters, Corporal A. H. Forsythe and Corporal E. H. Conroy, another gunner.

Lieutenant Bert Madison, truant officer of Springfield, showed a remarkable knowledge as to where stray bullets went during the practice. The lieutenant states that his line is locating anything that goes astray.

CURTURE TINY ZOO.

During the noon rest, a tiny cottontail rabbit, a centipede, and three horned toads were captured. They were placed in a small box together. When it came time to come home an extension of the "zoo" was made. It was discovered that one of the toads had partaken of a meal of a "hurried feet" while the rabbit and the other toad were having a fight for the supremacy of the box.

The rabbit was rescued and taken to camp, and the toads given their freedom.

Captain Thomas J. Hammond of Campello of Northampton, city solicitor of that city and a prominent lawyer of Western Massachusetts was today appointed regimental court officer by Colonel William C. Haynes. Captain Hammond is extremely popular with the men of the regiment and his promotion pleased every body in camp.

Sergeant Garfield Rivers of Springfield, has been recommended by Captain Loomis for an appointment to the rank of second lieutenant.

It was also recommended that Second Lieut. Ralph K. Safford of the same company be appointed first lieutenant. The men have not received their commissions as yet, owing to a new method of elections since the men joined the National Guard Company. Hayes has wired the Departments handling promotions for the proper procedure.

Major Alfred F. Poole's battalion consisting of Companies E and G from Springfield and D of Holyoke will commence tonight on their first detail of outpost duty.

Company B, of Springfield will start their interior duty tonight.

Peter Chamberlain of North Adams, one of the mounted scouts, was today appointed first sergeant of his company. He was a commissioned officer during the Philippine service in the regular.

The first taste of real service for many of the boys was gained duty about the camp and along the border.

One sentry came near shooting a burro that did not know the password, but otherwise the first night on outpost duty passed without incident.

Massachusetts, especially through the western part of the State, may well feel proud of her representation, at this, the most important point on the entire border. The men and officers of the Second have created a most favorable impression. Both officers and men of the regulars stationed here have expressed themselves as being highly pleased at the condition, the appearance, and efficiency of the men from Massachusetts.

The Second Regiment should feel doubly proud too, as you know, and so do the authorities here know, that these boys are at a point where if war were declared they would undoubtedly be the first Massachusetts contingent, and probably the first piece of infantry in the country across the line.

Having enlisted at a base as important as this one is, is indeed a serious proposition. Then, too, the recent attack of Villa and his band upon the little town, desolate as it is, is still fresh in the minds of the men.

The hot desert sand, the lizards crawling over tent floors, the parched throats, and the shortness of breath, altitude, does not bother the men the latter being due to the extreme when they realize the importance of their mission, and the honor that has been bestowed upon them by placing them at this point.

The boys today saw wild broncho "busters" by the real cowboys that inhabit these parts. The horses were a part of an army consignment. It was an interesting sight. One or two of the braver boys attempted to "get aboard," but after two or three had thrown they gave it up.

DANCE WITH SENORITAS.

The main street is the one attraction. After the sun goes down it is fairly crowded here. The boys flock to the different booths, where nothing but temperance drinks are served. That is the one redeeming feature of this prairie town. The place is no license and the rule is strictly adhered to.

The cabaret is a most interesting spot. Several attractive Spanish senoritas with their rolling eyes style, are hired by the management to dance with the boys. For this all that the senorita is jammed to the floor all of the time. Nevertheless, it's music and the dance merrily, and long, for the hall stays open until the wee hours of the morning.

It is not uncommon to see men dancing together. There is a remarkable shortage of girls, consequently the fellows pair up and enjoy themselves. You will see a begrimed truck driver, just in from a long drive, grab a senorita of the infantry crowd and swoop malestically down the floor with a one-step motion, and a two-step pitch.

$50 FOR DRIVERS.

The Massachusetts contingent got its first glimpse last night of the truck train that will travel between this base and General Pershing's camp, about 100 miles south of here.

Shortly after supper word was passed that the truck train would be in camp in a short while. Immediately the road which leads from the Mexican border to the camp was lined with the Massachusetts boys.

Shortly, clouds of dust, away off on the horizon, announced their coming. Ten minutes later in they chugged, huge, dust-laden trucks, sidewise, and making a terrific noise, loaded down with all sorts of things from the camp.

The drivers were black from head to foot. The trip takes several days and all you can see two miles is spent on Mexican soil.

The driver is protected by five soldiers, who have their Springfields in their hands at all times. Men on the rear of the truck are likewise protected. It was only three weeks ago that one of these truck trains was fired upon by ambers and two of the truck drivers killed. In the scuffle the rest of the men killed five or six Mexicans.

Since that time the guard has been increased and a different route taken. The drivers are paid $50 per week. Each time a truck comes in, or pushes on exit, the men are given cheer after cheer.

The sight made a great impression on the men and they talked about it for several hours.

BAND VS. TARANTULAS.

The boys did well—considering the sand that accumulates in the instruments. Samuel Bergman, chief musician, from Springfield, states that music can be dispensed as beautifully on the desert as in Court square, Springfield, if only the sand would blow the other way. Nevertheless, the boys accomplished much, and their practice will be kept up steadily hereafter. They did draw a few tarantulas around. According to Bergman, these tarantulas are music lovers, but the boys say no.

As a matter of fact, the tarantula is dangerous. At this time of the year they are ambitious, and if they alight on any flesh and get their "nippers" into you the wound is a sore one, and sometimes quite poisonous. They can jump a distance of nine feet. Consequently the band kept moving so as to avoid the "pests," much to the disappointment of Chief Bergman.

The men will tomorrow be given the light weight khaki suits, much more suitable for this climate than the olive-drab uniforms they are now wearing. Inspection will also be held.

It was rumored about camp last night that the Second would be called for special work sometime during the coming week. Just what the nature of that work will be could not be ascertained. The men are eager for something to start.

They are in plain view of the border and the mountains of Mexico at all times. They see some real action now and then, such as the truck trains coming in and going out, a few choice down on the border patrol regions, and mysterious flashes of lights on the mountains on the Mexican side of the border.

They are well and apparently happy. The censorship of all mail, which is due any day, has kept them busy writing letters. The newspaper men have already had several sessions with Colonel Haynes.

Arrest Company That Mutinied Over Army Food

Pittsfield, N. H., July 8.—Because they mutinied against "Army" food, Company F of the Forty-seventh Regiment, was taken under arrest today. The men were served with the usual bread-fast of rice, hominy, bread and coffee, but demanded meat. They were marched off to the guard house, and when they refused to obey orders Colonel Jan-nicker ordered out Company A, directed it to fix bayonets, and take the rebellious infantrymen away to clean out cells.

Aid Society to Feed Departing Recruits

Mrs. R. J. Mixter of the Special Aid Society is trying to raise $500 to pay for sandwiches and a hot cup of coffee, to be given the "rookies" Monday when they break camp at Framingham en route to the border.

Mrs. Mixter in referring to her late experiences in feeding the departing militia says:

"The boys of the militia had good appetites. I'm sure we will find the "rookies" hungry just as keen as the militia. Then we gave a sandwich to the train crew taking the boys away, too.

"This is a slight worth seeing and those who give toward it should see much the kindness and consideration is appreciated. I'm sure the boys on the train will be glad to get our sandwiches now. Please send your gifts to Mrs. John Lowell, Chestnut Hill."

McCall Appeals for Sleepers for Soldiers

Governor Samuel W. McCall today telegraphed secretary of War Newton D. Baker, urging that when the Massachusetts recruits are sent to the border Monday, they be accommodated with Pullman or tourist sleeping cars.

His telegram read as follows:

"Because of the apparent need of immediate movement of Massachusetts soldiers going to Texas two weeks ago could not have sleeping cars.

"On the next movement of our men, they should receive sleeping accommodations. They are accustomed to have them in their private travel, and the troops are such that they be provided with either tourist or regular sleeping cars.

TROOPS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE TO START MONDAY

Camp Spaulding, Concord, N. H. July 8.—It is expected that the First Regiment, New Hampshire National Guard, will entrain for Laredo, Tex., Monday, after embarking to fill the ranks of the outfit up to peace strength since the President's call for the militia, two weeks ago.

Today the regiment was still shy about twenty-five men to bring it up to peace strength of sixty-five men to the company.

A rapid physical examination of the men already in the guard and also of the recruits thronged into the ranks of the First Regiment and brought it down to about two battalions or less in strength. Then, too, some of the officers' wives and families were weeded out by the regular army medical officers, who were in charge of the examinations.

When the mail was sent out for recruits but few responded. For the past week all the New Hampshire National Guard has needed to gain this number has been about 100 able-bodied men.

HUNDREDS SPENT.

Today they have about seventy-five of this number, although hundreds of dollars have been spent by Governor Rolland H. Spaulding and by the Adjutant-General's office to drum in the country towns the plough boy, failed to respond to the appeal.

The situation became so acute this week, with Major-General Wood sending requests and inquiries about the two weeks delay of the Granite State troops, that Governor Spaulding sent out some ninety telegrams to selectmen of different towns, telling them the number of men they should secure for the militia from their towns. The towns which had no telegraph stations received personal appeals from Governor Spaulding. These appeals amounted to more than 100 in addition to the telegrams.

ORDERED AWAY TOMORROW

In spite of these appeals from the State's chief executive, a few towns and districts failed to send in many recruits, and of those that came in several cases were not accepted because of physical disability.

Orders have been issued to have the troops ready to move out of camp and on train at Concord tomorrow.

RECRUITS READY TO MOVE TOWARD MEXICAN BORDER

Governor and General Cole Bid Farewell to Soldiers Who Start for the South Tomorrow.

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Whitney, Framingham, July 8.—The two provisional regiments here marched in review before Governor McCall, Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole and staff officers at the camp tonight, as their last formal drill before entraining for the border.

The trains to take them to the border are waiting, much of their equipment has already started and there remains only tomorrow, with its throng of visitors and its tearful good-byes before the men get under way.

At least 15,000 persons are expected here tomorrow to say good-bye to the men, and the Coast Artillery Corps will have charge of the work of seeing that all runs smoothly in the camp.

Two thousand and seventy men will go to the border in this detachment. To carry them, there have been provided four trains of fifteen cars each, two of which will go by the New Haven and two by the Boston & Albany.

Among the final chores done by the men yesterday were the drill in packing the "papoose packs" which will replace the old blanket rolls; a drill for the official movie man; examinations by the medical officers, and such final results.

Lieutenant Frank P. Williams, Surgeon-General of the Massachusetts National Guard, was in charge of the physical examination of the men. A number of surgeons assisted him.

COURT-MARTIAL RUMOR.

A flurry of interest, even in the hurry of preparing to depart, was aroused by the news that three enlisted men are to be court-martialled on charges of appropriating government property and selling it.

The men to whom they sold the property have been found by agents of the Department of Justice and are expected to be prosecuted by United States District Attorney George W. Anderson.

Four medical officers have been assigned to go with the recruits. They are:

Captain James F. Coutal of the Eighth, Captain John F. Mahn of the Ninth, Captain E. W. Drury of the Fifth and First Lieutenant C. Johnston of the Second.

Here is a table showing how the Massachusetts forces now on the border are divided and how the recruits have been allotted:

| | NOW ON BORDER. | | GOING. | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Men. | Off. | Men. | Off. |
| Second Regiment | 923 | 47 | 540 | 1 |
| Fifth Regiment | 899 | 51 | 371 | 1 |
| Eighth Regiment | 962 | 49 | 500 | 2 |
| Ninth Regiment | 906 | 47 | 523 | 1 |
| 1st. Field Artillery | 954 | 55 | 15 | 0 |
| 1st. Squad. Cavalry | 297 | 16 | 49 | 0 |
| Signal Corps | 130 | 8 | 2 | 0 |
| Ambulance Corps | 74 | 5 | 6 | 0 |
| Field Hospital | 67 | 5 | 1 | 0 |
| Totals | 5,140 | 283 | 2,005 | 5 |

As soon as the recruits now at the camp have gone to the front, Camp Whitney will be closed up, Governor McCall announced yesterday. Further recruits will probably be drilled at one of the harbor forts.

The roster of the Coast Artillery Corps, which arrived today to take the place of the First Corps of Cadets, is:

First Company, Boston, Captain Marshall S. Holbrook; First Lieutenant Cyrus H. Stowell, Second Lieutenant Joseph H. Hurney. Second Company, Boston, Captain Albert L. Kendall, First Lieutenant Edward W. Raymond, Second Lieutenant Vernon A. Copeland. Third Company, Boston, Captain Harry S. Kane, First Lieutenant Charles C. Lane. Sixth Company, Cambridge, Captain H. Stanley Cushing, First Lieutenant Frederick C. Stroeder, Second Lieutenant Leander Sequin.

TO ASSIST ENTRAINING.

The members of these companies will assist the rookies in making a quick getaway. Officers of the Coast Artillery Corps have been here two weeks or more ahead of the privates and took part in moulding the embryo soldiers into shape and today take great pride in the results of their work.

Colonel Sweetser in charge of the camp, today announced that visitors will be permitted from 12 noon till 9.30 p. m.

The departure of the recruits may mean a number of marriages in camp tomorrow. It is known that several recruits had been granted a leave of absence several days next week to get married, among them being Private Francis R. Bartholomew of K Company, Ninth Regiment. He had planned to wed Miss Agnes Garvey of South Natick next Wednesday evening. Now that Bartholomew has been ordered to the front, a wedding supper will have to wait until the present difficulty between Uncle Sam and Mexico is adjusted. It may be the bride-to-be will muster up courage, says Bartholomew, and come into camp, with a clergyman to have the knot tied and become a war bride.

The thanks of the recruits have been forwarded to the Special Aid Society of American Preparedness for sending them 2,500 pieces of linen for towels. Colonel Sweetser received the supply yesterday, on behalf of the men and had them distributed to company commanders for immediate use.

Up to yesterday relief organizations in different parts of the State kept sending the recruits all kinds of nicknacks for camp life, all of which are appreciated by the men. Among these useful articles are safety razors, soap, brushes, manicure sets and the like.

The Young Men's Christian Association's tent in camp has been the mecca for recruits anxious to get in touch with loved ones. The officials in charge of the association's tent posted thousands of letters and postcards for the men during the past two weeks.

It is planned to pull off some of the sports postponed from July 4 tomorrow. Captain Jones of the Eighth Regiment heads the committee of arrangements and has charge of a number of valuable prizes for the winners of the tournaments. Several baseball games between recruits of the Ninth will be played late tomorrow afternoon near the woods back of the tents. The running events, consisting of 100-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880-yard dash, one-mile run, will be pulled off in one of the company streets.

GOOD WORK BY CADETS.

Colonel Sweetser expressed to Lieutenant-Colonel Joy of the First Corps of Cadets his thanks on behalf of the nation and Massachusetts for the work performed by the Cadets since they have been in camp. The Cadets left for home yesterday in special cars of the Boston and Worcester Street Railway Company.

Major Thomas Jenkins, who was threatened with pneumonia shortly after his arrival in camp, is reported well on the road to recovery. John McNulty, a member of the Eighth Regiment, is doing nicely at the Framingham Hospital, where he was taken on being overcome by the heat. He lives in Roxbury.

Members of the Sixth Regiment band are in a quandary as to what they are to do, now that the recruits are to leave camp. It is understood that the Fifth and Eighth Regiment bands will accompany the recruits to the border. That will be definitely decided upon tomorrow.

Tomorrow the boys who start for the front will, in the opinion of military experts, be one of the finest lots of recruits ever sent out of the State. Drill for two weeks or more has done wonders for them. They are in the best of health and spirits. Their equipment is several pounds lighter than the old-fashioned form of blanket roll such as the other regiments carried.

In the departure of the new men there will be plenty of speed in breaking camp, packing up, and entraining, but some of the undue hurry that marked the departure of the first regiments.

Present arrangements for the offloering of the recruits on the way to the border include the appointment by Colonel Sweetser of sixteen line officers, comprising one captain and lieutenants, eight medical officers and several staff officers. A line officer will be attached to each 150 men, there will be thirty-five men to a car and two cooks to a train. The names of these officers will be made public tomorrow.

Colonel Sweetser today issued orders to company commanders that no more passes are to be issued. Men on leave at present and who cannot be reached by telephone will be communicated with by the police and ordered to report at once to the camp.

Captain John P. Kane, Q. M. C., has charge of the payrolls containing names of officers and enlisted men of the National Guard. He paid the men off yesterday.

Captain Charles R. Morgan and sixty-seven men, known as Unit No. 2, arrived in camp yesterday. Drum Major Walter H. Thomas, a veteran of three wars, also arrived. He has been named drum major of the Fifth Regiment.

'PREPARE,' MOTTO OF WOMEN AIDING TROOPS

By JEAN MORGAN.

"Prepare—that we may be not only willing, but equipped and disciplined." This is the present motto of the women of Massachusetts who are generously giving their time and money to further the doctrines of American Preparedness.

"And since we have unity of purpose, it matters not just what the reason of being the various organizations may have, now we are co-operating and co-ordinative." Thus declared Mrs. William Lowell Putnam, chairman of the home relief committee, having headquarters at the State House and in close touch with Adjutant-General Cole.

"We expect to be here every day and all day, if necessary," said Mrs. J. Randolph Coolidge, Jr., who is chairman of information of the executive committee of the Special Aid Society.

AID DEPENDENTS.

"You see," she continued, "our soldiers have gone down to the border to protect our rights, and we who are remaining home have the one great privilege of doing what we can to help them by seeing that their loved ones do not suffer too much from their absence. So there is much to do in finding out if help is needed and serving where we can.

This is the "emergency work" that is just now claiming most of the interest and attention of the large number of society women who have come to the aid of the Governor in this hour of need. For many of the soldiers' families are not far from serious want and every effort will be made to prevent any distress.

It is expected that the various branches of the Special Aid Society throughout the State will, in working with the Mayors, get in communication with the families and will assist them when it is found necessary.

Now that the excitement of getting the "boys" off with as much comfort as was possible with so short notice has passed, the call for preparedness —and more preparedness comes from every quarter.

NEED IS NOT REALIZED.

Mrs. A. J. George of Brookline, just back from a trip covering 10,000 miles through the South and West, where she has been organizing branches of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness, said:

"People would believe in preparedness if they only knew the dire need of it. They do not." But let Mrs. George tell it.

"The mothers of our land demand that their sons shall not be murdered in the first line of defence, a needless sacrifice under our existing military system, should they be sent as volunteers against trained soldiers. They demand adequate training, proper officers, suitable equipment for the sons they have trained in the faith that death is not the worst thing; that it moral issues there can be no neutrality, and that those whose moral sensibilities are blunted by "increase of goods" are to be rejected as was the church of the Laodiceans because they are "lukewarm and neither cold nor hot."

"What kind of armament the country requires, how much, what will be the cost, how to raise the money—these are questions for high authorities. But our women are aroused to the need of defensive preparation, and insistent with the demand that this need shall be met."

Mrs. John Balch, president of the Anti-Suffrage Association, and first to hold out a helping hand, said: "Our organization, the Public Interest League, was 'at attention' for any emergency, and even while the troops were at Camp Whitney we helped eighty-five cases that came to our notice. Now we are prepared to take up any work that seems to need us most and we are at the service of the Governor."

SEWING MACHINES BUSY.

Fresh impetus has been given to the Red Cross work and the Metropolitan Chapter is now installed in the Technology clubhouse on Newbury street. Dozens of sewing machines are run from 9 o'clock in the morning till 8 in the afternoon. Society women who do not know how to sew or are giving their service in some other direction send their seamstresses. Flannel is piled high above the head, and at the long cutting table twenty dozen shirts are sent to those at the machines to be finished before the day's work is done.

In another part of the house Harvard Medical graduates give practical lessons in "first aid to the injured" and classes in elementary hygiene and home nursing are held.

Miss Ellen T. Emerson is chairman of the Home Nursing and Supplies Committee, and Miss Grace Nichols of "First Aid." Miss Lavinia H. Newell is in charge at the Tech Clubhouse and cordially receives and invites all those who will to come and help.

GLAD OF ANY HELP.

Mrs. Chapin said: "We want to continue sending our sixty cases a week to the war hospitals abroad as well as being prepared for any need of our own. Both are too urgent to allow us to cease for the Summer. So here we shall stay and work each day and we shall be glad to have anybody who will come and help us."

Nothing but surgical dressings are made there and the organization at any time will send out trained nurses to teach the art to various groups of women and branches of the Special Aid Society.

The Volunteer Aid, with offices at 79 Kilby street, and augmented by members of other divisions all day in taking the names of soldiers' wives and relatives, that assistance may be given where it is needed.

Miss Nora Saltonstall, a Back Bay society girl, has foreworn fashionable parties that she may sit at a desk with the wife of Colonel John Sherburne (who is now in command of the First Battalion at El Paso) and verify the names of soldiers on the enrollment lists and see that aid is given when asked.

Mrs. James Lawrence has gathered together the fashionable world of Milton and two mornings in each week the attractive Milton club house is diverted into a ward of surgical dressings in the making.

MILTON WOMEN ACTIVE.

Mrs. Lawrence studied the art last Winter at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital and is now passing her knowledge on to the others.

Almost all of the women have relatives or sons down "on the border," so an added tenderness and interest is given each bandage and sponge as they are neatly made and packed away. Mrs. Edward Reynolds has two sons with Battery A—Edward, Jr., Harvard '15, and Charles P. Reynolds, Harvard '17.

Mrs. Reynolds, busily making sponges, said: "Of course I'll be happy to get my boys back again, but I am proud of their eagerness to go and I know the training and discipline will do them lots of good."

Mrs. Philip M. Reynolds' son is Sergeant Harrison G. Reynolds, Harvard '17, and now with the Eighth Regiment at El Paso. "I think they are having a fine time," confided Mrs. Reynolds.

Mrs. Edward A. Hurd has a son in Squadron A, Troop C, of the New York State. Others belonging to this enthusiastic little band who will give two days a week working for the boys are Mrs. George E. Burgess, Miss Lucy Burgess, Mrs. Clifford Brigham, Mrs. Walter Jackson, Mrs. Josephine Griffith, Mrs. John Munro, Mrs. Edward Sturgis, Mrs. Walter West, Mrs. Albert H. Meredith, Mrs. Caleb Cunningham and Mrs. C. Russell Hurd.

9TH ASSOCIATES START MOVE FOR A RELIEF FUND

The associate members of the Ninth Regiment are to meet Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the East Armory, on Newton street.

The call for the meeting, which is held in the interests of the families of those at the front, is sent out by James J. Phelan, president of the association. Mr. Phelan requests a full attendance, not only of actual members of the association, but of all who are interested in the Ninth Regiment and who are willing to help.

Addresses will be made by members of the executive committee and others.

President Phelan's letter calling the meeting says:

"We are enjoying all our accustomed ease and comforts at home, while those in whose patriotism we are glad to take just pride are exposed to hardship and peril in our common cause. Meanwhile the families of many of them are faced with the stress of privation. In addition to the pains of separation and its imminent dangers to those who have left them.

CALLS ON ALL TO HELP.

"Let us meet to a man, assuming our undoubted obligations as cheerfully and spontaneously as our comrades have theirs.

"Let us manifest our love for them and our interest in their families by such a generous and practical response to this present duty that our brave boys at the front may at least rest easier and send cheer to the thought that their dear ones at home are not forgotten by the friends whose places in the ranks of patriotic service and duty they have so eagerly and manfully assumed."

In a letter which he forwarded yesterday to Colonel Logan, commander of the Ninth at the front, Treasurer Joseph O'Neil says:

"The relief fund collected up to date is about $3,500; $2,500 of this we have contributed to the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid Association, which is the relief committee appointed by Governor McCall.

"A substantial portion of the balance has been used in outfitting the Ninth Regiment recruits at Framingham with underwear, stockings, etc., or things that were absolutely necessary for their comfort.

SEEK NAMES OF NEEDY.

"In addition, many emergency family cases have been relieved.

"There are undoubtedly many cases that do not come to our attention, for one reason or another, that we could help if we only knew where they were."

TWO-THIRDS of all the new cars being equipped by their makers with cord tires are going out on Goodyear Cords.

That is important; but the rapidly increasing favor of these tires among owners of all cars everywhere is more significant to you.

For it shows that motorists in general have found out—as the car makers found out—that every good car gains in looks, in power-saving and gas mileage, in long life and smooth riding through Goodyear Cord Tires.

Goodyear No-Hook Cord Tires are made strong, safe and sturdy by these added advantages:

Jars and Jolts are combatted by great oversize and the suppleness of Goodyear Cord construction.

They are easy to put on and take off because they do not rust fast to the rim.

Punctures and skidding are reduced by our double-thick, All-Weather Tread.

GOODYEAR AKRON CORD TIRES

SOLDIERS APPLY FOR DISCHARGE

Those with Dependent Families Rush Appeals to State House That They Be Ordered Home

A flood of applications for the immediate release from Mexican service of the Bay State troopers with dependent families was received yesterday at the Adjutant-General's office.

The applications are being received as a result of the statement issued by the War Department that soldiers having one or more dependents would be allowed to return to their homes.

"From the number of requests we have received today it would seem that every Massachusetts man at the front must have someone at home dependent upon his support," said Chief Clerk Flowers.

The applicants are being referred to the War Department officials. Messages received by Flowers vary in their nature.

The telephone bell rang and Flowers said, "Hello."

"Has my husband gone?" asked a woman's voice on the other end of the line.

"I don't know," said Flowers. "What company is he in?"

"I don't know," said the woman, "but I bet he's backed out. He's too much of a coward to fight."

Governor McCall, who wired a request to Senator Lodge to work for the passage of the bill for relief pay for dependant families, received the following reply:

"Have received your telegram and thoroughly agree with you. House bill now in Senate. We shall probably add provision for dependent families of regular soldiers, as is both right and necessary. Have no doubt bill will pass very soon in this form"

Camp Whitney to be Given Up This Week.

Camp Whitney, the Framingham concentration point of the Bay State militiamen called to the border, will be discontinued this week as soon as the recruits leave for the front, Governor McCall said yesterday.

The Governor is informed that the men who recruit after the provisional brigade has left will be kept in immediate charge by the War Department and will be utilized at one of the Boston harbor forts.

General Cole said that about 1600 recruits are still needed bring all the Massachusetts units up to their war strength.

The State campground at Framingham was named Camp Whitney by Brigadier-General Sweetser in honor of the late Stephanus Whitney, who served with honor in the Civil war and who was for many years chief of the State police.

On the Border With Lice and Fleas

Thanks to the careful sanitary arrangements of the military authorities, the troops on the border will not have the same trouble with lice and fleas that they had during the Civil War.

During the Civil War it was necessary to go for many days without bathing or changing clothes. Conditions were so bad that Congress finally passed a law providing for frequent changes of clothing, plenty of bathing and other precautions. Consequently they became infested with body lice. Fleas were also plentiful. Our army at the present time is on the border of frequent changes of clothing, plenty of bathing and other precautions, but under these conditions there is not much chance for lice and fleas to get a start.

But once in the midst of a hard campaign, where bathing is impossible and incessant, all is changed; then there have to go without bathing for days at a time, sleep and eat anywhere they happen to be—then there they may have to use to camp may be some filthy adobe hut of a Mexican, which is likely to be badly infested with lice and fleas. The tired soldier, after finding a place to sleep, picks up a plentiful supply of both and carries them back to camp.

Then the trouble begins. As they change both disease carriers, there is a possibility of their spreading typhus and contagious diseases among the troops. In any event, they are a source of annoyance and disgust to the unhappy victim.

Preparedness against lice and fleas is as necessary as preparedness against bullets. The soldier who carries a box of "Martin's" Flea Powder and "Martin's" Flea Powder in his knapsack is prepared to wipe out these pests.

Sold at all drug and department stores for 50c and $1.00 per can each; 25c and $1.10 by mail.

Somerville Refugees Safe Reach Tampa from Vera Cruz

Mother of Mrs. Eldridge and Children Cheered by News from the American.

Mrs. G. H. Hopkins of No. 65 Chandler street, West Somerville, mother of Mrs. R. S. Eldridge, who with her four children were landed from the United States transport Sumner yesterday at Tampa from Mexico, was delighted to know when told by the Sunday AMERICAN, that Mrs. Eldridge was safe with the children.

Since last February Mrs. and Mr. Eldridge, with their children, have been in Vera Cruz and parts of the interior of Mexico.

Mrs. Eldridge's home is at No. 22 Bromfield road, West Somerville. Her husband is engaged in business in Mexico, and spent the last two years there. He has remained at Vera Cruz.

HAD LIVED IN DREAD.

When Mrs. Hopkins was assured her daughter and children were safe on American soil, her gratitude knew no bounds.

"I'm so glad to hear this," she said. "Ever since I heard of the Mexican trouble I did not dare read anything about it, fearing that my daughter and her children, as well as her husband, would suffer.

"This is such good news for me. I've worried for days.

"I do not want my daughter to go to that country again until they can get some protection. I know my daughter has been in a state of fear ever since she has been in Mexico. I just thought that the Mexicans would murder her and her husband and the children.

MUST PROTECT AMERICANS.

They did so in many instances and I was afraid that my dear ones would share the same treatment.

"I wish that something could be done to protect Americans and I hope that nothing will happen to Mr. Eldridge. He knows the Mexicans well, but then you can't tell what they will do in that country.

"I have a young son who wants to go down to Mexico. I hope he will go and I shall not be worried again over this matter.

Mrs. Eldridge's children are: Elizabeth, ten years; Roswell, eight; Natalie, six, and Marshall, 2.

Merry-Go-Round to Be 'Somewhere in Franklin Park'

"Somewhere in Franklin Park."

This is all that is publicly known as to the location of a merry-go-round that Chairman Dillon of the Park and Recreation Department proposes to allow in the park, the area of which is 527.8 acres.

At City Hall there is speculation as to why it is considered necessary to have one at all, as there is no merry-go-round in the park, when the recent application of Louis Bopp for one at City Point caused South Boston clergymen to protest so vigorously that the Mayor refused the permit two weeks ago.

Residents near the park say they will protest the merry-go-round if it is built near their houses.

MALDEN OUTING WEDNESDAY

Most of the business houses in Malden will close Wednesday afternoon when the annual outing of the Malden Board of Trade will be held at the Relay House, Nahant. An auto parade with nearly a hundred cars will convey the merchants and clerks to Bass Point.

MANY CAUGHT IN BIG NEW BEDFORD RAID

More Than 75 Arrests as Result of Activity of Watch and Ward Society.

New Bedford, June 3.—The biggest raid in the history of this city took place shortly before midnight, when agents of the Watch and Ward Society and a private detective agency, with a deputy sheriff, descended upon a score of places, where gambling or other violations of the law are alleged to have taken place.

The raid was made without the knowledge of the local police. Their first knowledge of the raid was when they were notified to have their wagons ready to take the arrested persons to the police stations.

In addition to the patrol wagons, several large touring cars were called to take the arrested men and women to the station houses. More than seventy-five persons were taken. Warrants authorizing the raid were issued by the local court.

Some excitement prevailed over the raid, as wagon after wagon rattled through the streets on the way to the station houses. Practically every bail commissioner in the city was called to and the arrested persons to obtaining their release.

Tramp, Tramp! 'Patriots' March on the Payroll

The tramp, tramp, tramp of payroll patriots looking for jobs sounds a discordant note in the ears of Governor McCall.

"If there was one new commission I would advocate in this State it would be a commission to take the work of filling offices out of the Governor's hands," he said yesterday.

"It takes about two-thirds of my time," he said, "listening to the attributes of men who want to enter the service of the State. As old Ben Butler said, 'I make one ingrate and nine enemies every time I make an appointment,' and I think Mr. Butler was right."

Governor McCall still has the Waterways and Commerce Commission, Gas and Electric Light Board, State Administrator, Public Service Commission and Civil Service Commission, among other offices, to fill.

DENY CHARGES BY WIDOW IN ASYLUM DEATH

State Board of Insanity Chief Says Winthrop Man Died from Natudal Causes.

Dr. Michael J. O'Meara, chairman of the state Board of Insanity, denies the charges brought by Mrs. Frances M. Winne of Pleasant street, Winthrop, who insists that her husband, Charles A. Winne, a Boston architect, died of the Westboro Hospital, July 6, under suspicious circumstances that demand an investigation.

Winne's death, according to Dr. O'Meara, was due to natural causes, and that the board has done its full duty in the matter of an investigation.

The autopsy that followed Winne's death disclosed the fact that he had sustained broken ribs on both sides of the body. There were also a number of bruises on the body.

Mrs. Winne claims that her husband was "tortured." She also says that the bruises had undoubtedly been inflicted otherwise than by himself. She further charges that she had been kept away from her husband until he died.

"Death was due to paresis and not to violence," said Dr. O'Meara. "The reports in connection with the case are public documents and are open to inspection by Mrs. Winne at any time she may desire to look at them.

A significant feature in connection with the ill-health of Dr. L. Vernon Briggs of the State Board of Insanity, who admits that one of three circumstances—negligence, overcrowding or lack of facilities—was responsible for the failure of the Westboro Hospital authorities to administer what is known as "prolonged baths," which invariably calm violent patients.

The written report of the medical examiner says that Winne was "full of trichin—one of which was to steal food from other patients at the hospital.

According to the authorities, this action on the part of Winne greatly angered the other patients, with the result that he was at times subjected to beatings at their hands.

The autopsy report shows that eight of the patient's ribs were fractured.

In view of these facts, Mrs. Winne says she is determined to push the charges, believing as she does that they are supported by suspicious circumstances. She insists that a thorough examination be made at once.

Druggist Says Orpet Bought Deadly Drug

Drug Company, where Orpet purchased fumigating materials. Specimens of it were analyzed by the poison experts for the defence and they were found to be sodium cyanide.

The State had always contended that it was cyanide of potassium taken from this greenhouse supply with which Orpet killed Marian Lambert. This new development practically broke down this part of the case.

The attorneys for the defence made a pretension of fearing this new development little. They admitted freely that the elder Orpet had made a purchase of cyanide of potassium on December 24, the day he had taken it home and kept it in the living room. They declared, however, that the pound packages it came in had not been opened.

Will Orpet was home for the Christmas holidays and the State was preparing to show that he could have had easy access to this new supply of the deadly drug.

MUT AT ALL POINTS.

The defence has astutely maintained that the defendant has never had access to the cyanide of potassium. When the State hinted that he may have purchased it from the prescription counter in the Madison drug store where his friends, Hasbrouck and Bowe, were employed, the defence produced witnesses to swear that Orpet was never out in the prescription room. They even read into the record a Wisconsin law prohibiting sales.

This left only the greenhouse cache and the defence responded by pointing out that this material was sodium cyanide.

With the possibility of proving that there was actually a supply of the deadly drug right in the very living room of his home all the time he was home during the Christmas holidays, the State was optimistic of being able to repair this breach in its case.

Dr. Webster occupied the stand for another hour and a half today. The cross-examination was wearisome and the defense scored few points in addition to the one made yesterday.

The expert was finally excused and Fred Wenbish, the Lake Forest undertaker, was called by the State to testify about the spots on Marian's green coat. His examination was brief.

CALL FOR FATHER.

The State then called for Edward O. Orpet, father of the accused. He was not in the courtroom at this time. The defence announced that he had been summoned and would arrive on the next car from Lake Forest.

His testimony was expected to be concerning the cyanide supply in the living room of his home. While awaiting his arrival Carl Kraft, a Lake Forest druggist, was called to the stand.

Questioned by Attorney Daly for the State:

Q—Do you ever deliver to William Orpet during last December any package or can? A—Yes.

Q—Describe the can? A—It was a sealed can.

Q—How much did it weigh? A—About a pound.

Q—What was the label? (objection overruled). A—It was a potash label and the word "Cyanide" was on it.

Q—When was it? (Witness hesitated and didn't answer).

Q—When was it? A—I figure it was the 20th of last December. Those were really two cans.

Q—Who's dad was about the cans? A—I think from the Robert Stevens Company.

READ MIRIL LETTERS.

Cross-examination by Attorney Peters.

Q—State what was said? A—Will Orpet told me when he called for the cyanide that they had been using some that wasn't satisfactory and wanted to try some other kind.

Q—Are you sure you saw trading two cans from a brown paper package and handing them to the witness? A—Yes.

The cans were then entered as evidence in behalf of the defence.

Arbiters Hear Telegraph Men's Plea for Raise

By International News Service.

New York, July 8.—Several important witnesses were called at today's session of the Federal Board of Arbitration which is trying to settle the controversy between the New York, Central and five railroads and their 5,000 telegraphers.

H. B. Money, chairman of the telegraphers' committee was questioned concerning the telegraphers' objections to caring for eighth lamps. He explained that these lamps are often nearly a mile from the towers and that the men should not be called away from their instruments to care for them.

The telegraphers ask for an increase in wages from twenty-four cents an hour to twenty-seven and one-half cents an hour.

READING CELEBRATION.

Because of showers, Reading's fourth of July celebration was postponed for a second time yesterday and will take place Wednesday with sports in the afternoon and fireworks and band concert in the evening.

WARNS OF DOCK FIRE PERIL IN SOUTH BOSTON

Freight yard No. 3 is without water mains. Ten-inch water mains, properly looped, should be laid in the southerly end of the yard and hydrants located in every other driveway.

To what is known as the Farao street yard are located freight houses Nos. 2, 10, 11 and 12. I recommend that a 10-inch water main be laid in each of these driveways leading from Farao street, and at least two hydrants located therein for fire department use.

Located off Anchor street, in the southerly end of the terminal system, is freight yard No. 7. This yard is located in many respects from adequate fire protection. It covers a large territory and should have water mains and hydrants located therein for fire protection.

Freight yard No. 2 is located in the southerly end, west side, of the terminal system. I recommend that a 10-inch water main be laid in this yard.

I desire to call attention in saying that the fire equipments in the houses and on the premises is kept in good condition and efficient order. Rules, etc., are posted in conspicuous places in buildings throughout the terminal yard. The policing of the grounds and buildings is excellent and all necessary precautions are observed in relation to fires started about the yard for that purpose.

Yard engines are equipped with the best fire equipment which all of the engineers have been made familiar with. I believe that it would be a good idea if the man in charge would instruct the engineers in the use of this equipment.

It would further recommend that legislation be urged which would require that buildings of the freight-house type now existing or hereafter to be erected, covering a large ground area, be cut up by cross-walls of fireproof material so that the area of any one room or division would not exceed a certain number of feet.

Such legislation would not, I believe, work any hardship on the railroad or steamship companies, beyond the added expense of the cost of the walls, as the insurance on unfortunate areas are not. I believe at all necessary for the conduct of business.

Standpipes with hose attached, water barrels and extinguishers are to be supplied in the yards. Local Watchman service with clock system and supervision, auxiliary fire alarm boxes near each fire apparatus complete this part of the equipment.

VICTORY IN 35 MINUTES.

Following is the text of the Paris midnight communique:

"To the north of the Somme in spite of persistent rain and fog, our troops this morning attacked the village of Hardecourt and the small hill to the north in cooperation with the British, who, on their side, attacked the Trones wood and the farm to the southeast of this wood.

"Thanks to the vigor of our infantry attack, we were masters of both objectives within thirty-five minutes. Two German counter attacks, one from the north and the other from the east, during the afternoon against the small hill conquered by us was broken up by our fire.

"The Germans, who suffered important losses during these actions, left in our hands 260 prisoners.

"To the south of the Somme there were no important events to report during the day.

"On the Verdun front there was an intermittent bombardment against our first and second lines on the left of the Meuse. Artillery activity continues very violently in the sectors north of Souville, the Fumin woods and against the Damloup battery.

"On the rest of the front there was the usual cannonading."

"In Bukowina, our troops in successful engagements captured 500 prisoners and four machine guns. In Southeastern Galicia, between Delatyn and Kalowka numerous attacks by the Russians were repulsed by our Alpine territorials. Further north in the region of Kolki the situation is unchanged.

"Austro-Hungarian troops fighting along the border of the Styr River, that, during the past four weeks has opposed hostile forces five times their own strength, received an order yesterday to withdraw their most advanced lines which were exposed to double flanking operations by the Russians.

RETREAT IS SAFETY.

"Assisted by the co-operation of the German troops west of Kolki, and by the heroic action of the Polish legion, near Koloda, the movement was executed undisturbed by the enemy. Yesterday was quiet on the part of the Baranovitch front, held by the Austro-Hungarians.

"The Russians have suffered extraordinarily heavy losses in attacks against positions held by the German allies. In the district of Ikva, enemy artillery shelled a field hospital of the Austro-Hungarians although it was plainly marked as such. If such a breach of the law of nations is repeated, we shall direct our cannons against the monastry at Novopoczayev, which has been spared up to date.

"Italian war theatre—On the Doberdo plateau artillery activity was renewed east of Selz and also infantry actions in which our troops maintained their positions. South of the Sugana Valley powerful Italian forces attacked our front between Cimadiel and Monte Zebio. Everywhere the enemy was repulsed. At some points there were hand to hand combats."

MORE PRISONERS TAKEN

The Russian War Office gave out the following report at Petrograd today:

"We are developing our success west of Czartorusk. After hot fighting with the bayonet, we captured Dolitza on the main road to Kovel, Manevitchi and Gruziatin. The number of prisoners in our hands is increasing.

"North of the Lower Lipa, under the cover of a violent bombardment, the enemy attempted to start an offensive in the regions of Schelin and Dubovya, but all his attacks were repulsed. Severe artillery duels are in progress at many points in Galicia.

"East of Monastir and Jisko on the River Koropiec we are pressing the enemy. Westward of Sadzavki and east of Delatyn we captured an enemy position and made some prisoners.

"Southeast of Lake Narocz the Germans made fierce counter attacks and reconquered some trenches they had lost. Fighting is still in progress there. On a considerable part of the front between the Upper Niemen and the Pinsk marches there has been violent artillery firing. Eastward of Baranovitch, in the region of Odchavchinia, the Germans pressed us back slightly as the result of violent counter attack, but our concentrated fire drove them from their positions."

Italians Make New Gains in Advance Move.

Rome, July 8.—The War Office announces further successes in the following report:

"In the Lerdo Valley the artillery on both sides is very active. Shells fell on Bezzecca. In the Lagarina Valley the enemy's heavy guns yesterday bombarded our positions on the right bank of the Adige. In the Sugana valley artillery duels and small infantry combats. In the Terraganolo Valley we caused mine explosions near Roverelo.

"In the upper Astico basin we are consolidating our positions and pushing forward toward the enemy's lines.

"Yesterday there was lively fighting in the upper Asiago plateau. The enemy heavily bombarded Zellonkofel. In the Carso sector Thursday night the enemy bombarded our positions in the Monfalcone sector and at daybreak launched two attacks. They were promptly repulsed.

"Our aviators bombarded the enemy's positions and columns south of Caillario Adige Valley and upper Assa Valley. All returned safely."

BERLIN SAYS BRITISH DRIVE IS CHECKED

Repulse of All Attacks in the Region of the Somme Claimed in German Report.

By International News Service.

Berlin, July 8.—Repulse of all British attacks in the region of the Somme is claimed in the German War Office report issued today. It follows:

"West front—On both sides of the Somme unremitting attacks were repulsed with sanguinary losses to the enemy. Before Ovillers, Contalmaison and Bazentin le Grand great numbers of fallen Englishmen cover the ground. The number of dead Frenchmen on the front of Biaches and Soyecourt give indications of the masses of men employed by the enemy in their attacks, as well as the devastation wrought by our artillery, machine gun and musketry fire.

"On the right bank of the Meuse the enemy is sacrificing men in fruitless assaults at Froide de Terre Hill, where he has been unable to gain a foot of ground. Several hundred prisoners remained in our hands. Weak attempts by the enemy to advance at Damloup Hill battery were repulsed.

"Artillery and patrol activity is reported from the chines of the front. A lively attack by a company of French troops at Bois le Pretre was repulsed.

RUSSIANS REPULSED.

"East front—Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: During the repulse of Russian attacks, south of Lake Narcox we captured two officers and 210 men. At other points attempts to advance by the enemy were repelled.

"Army group of General von Linsengen, south of Luck—We wrested advantages from the enemy.

"Army group of General von Bothmer, northwest of Buczacz—Russian attempts to storm our positions were fruitless.

"Army group of Prince Leopold of Bavaria—Repeated efforts by strong Russian forces have been directed against our positions along the front from Zirin to the southeast of Gorodischche ever since yesterday. In addition the enemy assaulted our lines on both sides of Darovo. All these attacks were repulsed. The dead before our positions can be counted by thousands. In addition we have taken many prisoners. The engagements continue.

KITCHENER SERVICE ON SUNDAY EVENING

A memorial service for the late Earl Kitchener will be held, at the request of the British Military and Naval Veterans' Association, at St. Paul's Cathedral, this evening, at 7:30 o'clock. British born citizens and natives of Canada and other British colonies are especially invited. The Rev. Edward T. Sullivan, rector of Trinity Church in Newton Centre, who is the Summer preacher at the Cathedral, will make an adress on "Kitchener, Britain's Man of the Hour." The services will be preceded by the singing of familiar hymns on the Cathedral porch at 7:15 o'clock.

of the British to keep faith with the rest of the world.

"Had the government then taken a position in support of the rights of peace-abiding nations, rights asserted and won in the Declaration of London, the people of the United States would have been spared most of the indignities and invasions of their interest they have since suffered.

"NEUTRALS DERIDED."

"The elaborate pretence that they were observing the principles of the Declaration of London carried on by the British with infinite pains during two years has, I suppose, its effect on those who require illusions for the support of their friendship.

"The Americans are presumed to be a practical people, but at the bottom I wonder if they are not the most sentimental people in the world. So long as the British have pretended to respect the freedom of the seas, no doubt some of your people have been honestly misled.

"But now that the British have come to the point of repudiating openly all respect of neutral rights, possibly the eyes of such people may be opened.

"The formal fate of the Declaration of London is a matter of little practical concern. It was hung, drawn and quartered long ago by the British executioners, though legally it was still alive.

"It is characteristic of the English now to propose to give it a decent burial.

"As long ago as March 30, 1915, President Wilson described their attitude toward your sea-borne commerce as 'almost an unqualified denial of the sovereign rights of nations now at peace.' Since March 15, the denial has ceased to be almost unqualified and has become altogether unqualified. Yet in fifteen months you have been able to find no way in which to vindicate the sovereign rights of the United States.

"How long will neutrals be content to sit supinely while their sovereign rights are thus derided and denied?

"WELFARE DAMAGED."

"How long will you permit England to enforce its municipal statutes as if they were international enactments; to enact its customs duties functions on the seas; to violate our mails ;to seize and hale before British judges your ships and your people as if you were malefactors?

"Germany and neutral Europe, to confess the truth, have almost ceased hoping that the cause of neutral commerce will, during this war, find a champion in the United States.

"There seems little ground for trusting you after so many months of submission to stand up in the stature of a sovereign state and reassert the now extinct right to send your ships, mails and goods across the ocean.

"Yet, when the Fourth of July reminds me, as you have made it remind me, of the heroic struggle which the Americans who founded your nation waged against oppression, I am led to indulge the hope that, now that the issue is squarely before you, you may at last act with a boldness and dignity commensurate with the seriousness of the affronts of which you have been made the victim and the damages which have been inflicted upon your welfare."

I need, I think, add nothing to his words to convey the impression of earnestness with which the Chancellor spoke.

RHONA PITTFIELD, ONE OF GIRLS HELD IN TRAGEDY

JURY WILL QUESTION PEABODY CITIZENS

Early Report Expected Following Investigation Conducted in Suffolk County by Pelletier

Witnesses from the home town of the unfortunate Margaret Ward are scheduled to be a feature of the third session, tomorrow, of the Suffolk Grand Jury's probe of this so-called "master mind mystery."

A new clew has been discovered by the police, according to report late yesterday, which may add striking developments to those already in hand.

The Peabody witnesses to be heard tomorrow were summoned yesterday by Inspector James A. Dennessy of Boston police headquarters. They were:

Trial Justice William B. Fay.

Mrs. Arthur O'Neil.

Edward J. Carney, counsel for former State Representative Charles R. O'Connell, one of the ten defendants.

Inspector Dennessy had a summons for a Lynn man, it was said, but no details regarding this person could be obtained.

SEARCH FOR WOMAN.

The Marlboro police are keeping watch for the appearance in their city of Mrs. Elizabeth G. Pittfield, mother of Rhona, Geraldine and Marian Pittfield. The police are seeking the mother and Marian. The mother was last reported on her way to the South Station with a suit case last Wednesday morning at 8:30, two hours after the body of Margaret Ward had been brought by automobile to her sister's home in Salem.

Rhona and Geraldine Pittfield are among the ten defendants. The third girl defendant is Margaret Stewart, a former Marlboro girl. Mrs. Pittfield and Margaret Stewart have visited Marlboro in the past four years, since the Stewart girl left there.

Margaret Stewart is an orphan, with three brothers. Her mother died 12 years ago. She is described in Marlboro as having been a "mother" to her brothers up to the time she left home, when her father died.

An early report by the grand jurors is expected.

A feature of the Grand Jury session yesterday was the secret arrival and departure of three mysterious witnesses who testified before the Grand Jury. They were two women and a man.

GET MORE EVIDENCE

New witnesses yesterday included Captain Goodwin and Special Officer Hines of Dudley Street Police Station, Patrolman Healey of Salem, who figured in the first arrests in the case; George W. Goodale, druggist in Peabody, where the Ward girl lived, and the three mysterious witnesses, whose names the District Attorney would not reveal.

1. Second session of Suffolk Grand Jury, with a score of additional witnesses summoned.

2. Search by the police and district attorney's office for three women. These are:

(a) Mrs. Minnie Frothingham of No. 11 Allston street, sister of the two O'Connell defendants. A subpoena having failed to bring her before the grand jury, the district attorney has asked police, press and public to help locate her.

(b) Mrs. Elizabeth G. Pittfield, mother of the two Pittfield girl defendants.

(c) Miss Marian Pittfield, the missing mother's third daughter.

3. Police theory that Margaret Ward was taken to No. 42 Warren street after being operated upon at some other place and that the

'CATCHY' BILLY SUNDAY SONGS FOR REVIVAL

Chorus of Eight Thousand to Be a Feature of Evangelist's Services.

"If your heart keeps right, Boston will be right."

This will be the new rendering of the Billy Sunday song when the Boston campaign comes in the Autumn.

Warren W. Adams of the Pierce building is director of the chorus choir of 8,000 voices to sing the Sunday songs at the tabernacle.

"You'll find every one humming on Boston streets one or more of these Sunday songs after the campaign is in full swing," declared Professor Adams.

"These songs are not only 'catchy' but they have much inspiration in them and will be one of the most helpful aids in promoting the campaign.

"Great interest has been expressed from all sides in the chorus choir. It speaks well for Boston that every member, young and old, can read music. We begin the formal rehearsals in September.

There are four choruses. Chorus numbers 1 and 2 are combined as a mixed choir. Chorus number 3 is a male choir and chorus number 4 a women's choir.

"One of the most interesting features of the musical program will be the singing of about 20,000 children every Saturday afternoon in the tabernacle.

"We have no trouble in getting singers. They come from all over New England. Wait and see one of the most impressive musical campaigns in Boston."

WILLIAM F. DODD MADE INSPECTOR

The staff of the Boston office of the inspector of steam vessels has been increased by the appointment of William D. Todd, formerly chief officer of the Bunker Hill, as assistant inspector of hulls, and the transfer of John Stewart from New London to Boston to be assistant inspector of boilers. The additional work due to the La Follette Seamen's Act made it necessary for Chief Inspector Eugene E. O'Donnell to increase his staff.

HOLDUP OF THE CITY BY BIG CORPORATIONS

Public service corporations are holding up the city in the matter of furnishing power for the new high pressure pumping station, according to Edward F. Murphy, commissioner of public works, who last night made public the results and reasons for making a trip to Philadelphia last week and inspecting the gas power high pressure fire service pumping plant of that city.

After years of controversy the site of the pumping station for Boston's high pressure fire service was settled upon a few weeks ago at a point near the Charles Street Jail. These original plans called for pumps operated by electricity.

PLANS FOR EMERGENCY.

Now, according to the Commissioner, he is having difficulty in getting the Edison Company to make reasonable terms to the city. In fact, he says the company says it doesn't want the business at all.

Commissioner Murphy said last night:

"I have just returned from Philadelphia where I inspected the gas power plant of the Philadelphia high pressure fire service. It apparently works beautifully. There is only one trouble. Gas engines cannot be made to give extra service in case of emergency. They are rated at so much power and no power over that figure can be obtained from them.

"The Edison Company does not seem to want to make a reasonable rate to the city. While no contract has as yet been signed, prices talked of are too high. In addition they want a liberal price for installation.

"The company demands that other electrical service be installed to fall back on in case of emergencies. There are only two other electrical services we can get. They are those of the Cambridge Electric Company and the Elevated Company.

MAY DEAL WITH "L."

"The Cambridge Company would have to string cables across the new bridge. The company says this would cost $100,000, and that it does not want the business anyway.

"We are now taking the matter up with the Elevated Company, and this company will report shortly on what it can do in the matter. Some of these corporations, in my opinion, are trying to hold up the city, and the only club I have over them is the threat to use gas for power instead of electricity.

MENTION MATTHEWS FOR CITY COUNCIL

Sorrow Element Understood to Favor Him as a Candidate to Fill the Seat of Coulthurst

Kenny, Attridge and Ballantyne Said to Advocate Francis J. W. Ford, the South Boston Lawyer

Will the City Council elect a man to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Councillor John A. Coulthurst?

Up to last night no member of the council would admit that any election is contemplated, and the law on the matter is rather vague.

In spite of the fact that no immediate date has been set and perhaps will not be set until the next municipal election, already wires are being pulled and names being mentioned of possible candidates to succeed Mr. Coulthurst, whose term would have expired in Feburary 1915. The names mentioned are: Nathan Matthews, Francis J. W. Ford, Benjamin C. Lane, James A. Watson and W. Dudley Cotton.

Section 50 of the city charter says that when a vacancy occurs, the City Council "shall elect a registered voter for the balance of the municipal year, unless the vacancy should occur within two months of the city election."

NO TIME LIMIT.

There is no time limit mentioned when the council shall elect a registered voter to fill the vacancy for the rest of the municipal year and there is no penalty attached if the council fails to do so. It is possible that an election may be held in the early Fall.

It is understood that former Mayor Nathan Matthews is favored as a candidate by the Storrow element. It is known that Mr. Matthews would be acceptable to the majority members of the Council.

If Mr. Matthews should decline to run Benjamin C. Lane of Roslindale is being talked of for second choice. Mr. Lane is a business man, a Good Government man and active in the Chamber of Commerce. He was formerly president of the United Improvement Association.

The so-called majority members of the Council are President Hagan and Messrs. Storrow, Collins and Coleman. The death of Councillor Coulthurst reduces them of the majority of one vote by which they controlled the Council.

Councillors Kenny, Attridge and Ballantyne are said to favor Francis J. W. Ford of South Boston. He is a well known lawyer and also a Good Government man. He was a candidate some years ago but withdrew in favor of President Hagan.

MENTION OTHERS.

Councillor McDonald, on many questions, has been voting with these three. Should he continue to do so on the question of electing someone to fill the vacancy it would leave the Council deadlocked. Although Councillor McDonald is an administration man it is prophesied that he will be with Kenny, Attridge and Ballantyne on the question of electing a successor to Councillor Coulthurst.

Former Councillor Watson is also being mentioned, but last night he said he would not be a candidate unless assured of five votes, which at present seems impossible.

W. Dudley Cotton is another possibility. He is a close friend of Robert Bottomly, the secretary and moving spirit of the Good Goverment Association. He was present at most, if not all, of the secret Good Government committee meetings at the City Club and Parker House, when the Good Government Association took a hand trying to settle the budget disputes last winter.

ONE MORE LEAVES PROVIDENCE JAIL

Providence, July 8.—Philip Gagnon, who escaped from the House of Correction today, was the fourth to escape from that institution this month. Of the 25 men who escaped in June, four were recaptured. The suggestion that a swimming pool be installed is met by a prison board member, who said: "They scale walls successfully. Now they want a swimming pool to teach them to swim the river."

FOR 11 YEARS DRANK QUART OF WHISKEY DAILY

Brockton, July 8.—Judge Warren E. Reed, in Police Court today, had a new liquor problem put up to him. The problem was this: Nelson Guyette, a shoe worker, forty-eight years old, of No. 44 Brookside avenue, was arraigned for transporting eight quarts of liquor on a street car in violation Brockton by Liquor Inspectors Chase and Grose. Guyette told the court that the liquor was for his own use and that for eleven years he had drunk a quart of whiskey per day.

Judge Reed decided that Guyette was not guilty.

Court officers, in the meantime were busy, and these are their figures on Guyette's consumption of the "red liquor" for the past eleven years.

They figure that he has drunk 4,015 quarts of whiskey in that time. That at Brockton, which he pro bounds, sells its whiskey by the half pint in "blind tigers," it would make 16,060 half pints. They claim that there are twenty-five ordinary "drinks" in a quart of whiskey. This would make Guyette drink 100,375 drinks of "red liquor" in eleven years.

Figured down to money, at ten cents a drink, if it was bought over a bar, this would mean $10,037.50 in some saloon keeper's pocket.

Guyette told the court he paid seventy-five cents a quart for his whiskey. At that figure he must have spent $3,031.25 for his whiskey in this time. That shows the advantage of buying by the quart.

He told Judge Reed he always bought his liquor in Taunton. That would cost, at one trip per week, $500 for eleven years. The fare is 40 cents by electric car from Brockton to Taunton. They also figured that it would mean three hours to make each trip. One hour each way on the cars, and one hour in Taunton. Then they figure he must have consumed sixty days in getting his liquor.

Thermometer Climbs Steadily as Boston Staggers; Relief in Boston Staggers; Shower

With one death and many prostrations as the record for the hottest day this year has brought, better prospects were ahead last night.

The hottest hour of the day was noon, and shortly after noon the mercury touched 91, the high mark. A shower brought a four degree drop, and when the thermometer had climbed toward the ninety mark, one shower and then another sent it tumbling down seven or eight degrees.

It was 72 at 2 p. m., the coolest registered for the day up to that time.

Forth Worth, Texas, carried off high honors in early reports to the bureau with 95, while Eastport was low with 52.

This was not the hottest July 8 on record. In 1878 the thermometer touched 95. The coolest July 8 was in 1909, with a 55.

Suffering was heavy in the tenement districts of the city, and even the showers that brought relief took a toll of lives outside Boston.

Thousands in Boston found relief by hastening to the beaches.

Walter T. Kneisel of No. 34 Mystic avenue, Somerville, fell from the third floor piazza of his home, while trying to get afew minutes' rest. Almost crazed by the intense heat that penetrated every nook and corner of his home, he dragged his couch to the veranda, believing that there he would be able to get the benefit of what little air was stirring.

He evidently walked to the edge of the balcony and while leaning over the railing was overcome. His body pitched to the ground below. Charles F. Nelson, who lives on the floor be-

INFANT PLAGUE KILLS ONE IN STATE

Dudley Death Second in Massachusetts; Six Cases In State and 19 Through New England

Boston and State Health Authorities Wage Campaign of Prevention to Safeguard Children

The second death in Massachusetts from infantile paralysis since that disease became epidemic in New York on June 20 came yesterday afternoon.

The death was in the town of Dudley, near Webster. The victim was two-year old Michael Skovnak, whose illness was reported three days ago. The State Board of Health will take prompt measures to prevent the spread of the disease in Webster.

The first death in this State from infantile paralysis since the New York epidemic started was in the town of Sheffield, night before last. A boy brought there from Brooklyn, Thursday night, was the victim.

There are now, based on latest reports received last night, six cases of polyomyelitis, or infantile paralysis, still under treatment in Massachusetts. None of these is in Greater Boston.

The total in New England, so far as known, is nineteen, of which Massachusetts has six, Rhode Island seven and Connecticut six.

SIX BAY STATE CASES.

The distribution of the six Bay State cases is as follows:

New Bedford—One case; four previous cases recovered.

Fall River—One case, five-year-old Joseph Conroy, case described as "strictly local." A case reported there June 6 has recovered.

Worcester—One case, reported yesterday.

Lawrence—One case, reported July 5, fatal.

Haverhill—One case, Daniel, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Evans of Hyatt avenue, both legs affected, reported yesterday.

The Blandford case has caused alarm in that town and the adjoining community at Russell. These places, about 15 miles from springfield, have many summer visitors from New York. Chairman H. C. Shurtleff of the Mansfield Board of Health yesterday ordered automobile drivers to bring no New York arrivals at Russell over to Mansfield. The Russell authorities plan to quarantine all New York arrivals.

The Massachusetts and Boston health authorities have taken energetic preventive measures.

Mayor Curley yesterday ordered men of all city departments, especially police and sanitary, to co-operate with the Health Department by reporting any suspected cases of plyomyelitis or any unsanitary conditions.

WILL INSPECT BABIES.

The Boston Health Department, under City Health Commissioner Francis X. Mahoney, will inspect 1,000 babies a day in the congested district from now until the epidemic possibility passes.

It is planned to have every infant in the congested sections inspected once in every three or four days.

Dr. Mahoney declared this to be but part of the department's stand for "preparedness." He said: "There is not a single case in Boston but we are ready for it if the epidemic comes."

To do this work the city health department has a field force of ten doctors, twenty-two nurses and a score or more of inspectors who have been pressed into service in charge of Deputy Health Commissioner Thomas B. Shea. The department force will continue its labors today and the head office at City Hall Annex is open every day including Sunday from 9 a. m. to 11 p. m.

Every citizen is requested to telephone at once anything that he may suspect to be wrong with the health

MYSTERY IN LOVE TRAGEDY, SAYS CONSTANCE WILLIAMS

WHOSE HAND SENT GIRL TO LONELY DEATH?

By CONSTANCE WILLIAMS.

LATE in the night or Saturday, the first day of July, persons still abroad in the neighborhood of Warren street, out in Roxbury, heard sounds that halted them in their tracks—low cries and moans that rose at times to gasping shrieks.

Pedestrians, alone upon the streets, stood frozen for an instant; then, as though unconsciously, drew together in little knots and looked about them.

Presently a little crowd had gathered; but the cries and sounds were hushing, they were muffled—they were gone.

A policeman came along. "What's the trouble here?" he asked.

"Somebody was yelling," said a man.

"Sounded like a girl," said another.

"Where was it?" the officer asked.

But no one had been able to locate the sounds definitely. The houses along the street were dark, there was nowhere a sign that anyone was still awake. The sounds had come dimly, as through many walls, perhaps from another street.

The crowd scattered, the officer went on his way. He had heard nothing, himself, and he believed the little throng had imagined they heard cries, or that, at worst, they had caught the echo of some domestic disturbance in the crowded apartments in the neighborhood.

Wednesday morning, an automobile stopped before the home of a Salem police officer—Sergeant Charles A. H. Duffee of No. 139 Boston street, Salem.

TRAGEDY OF LOVE.

"She's sick," they told Sergeant Duffee.

"She's dead," he said.

And when the driver of the car was questioned, he said he had brought the girl from a house on Warren street, Roxbury. Her parents said she left home Saturday. Cries were heard on Warren street that Saturday night.

That, briefly, is the story of the death of Margaret Ward. The young woman was thirty-one years old; she lived in Peabody. She was happy, joyous, laughing when she left home on Saturday, the first day of July. And the next her parents saw her—she was dead.

A love tragedy, the police said, and little by little the story came out. Much is yet to come, for the mystery of the case has thus far been only scratched.

Wholesale arrests have been made in the case; the grand jury has taken it under consideration; the police have busied themselves with it. Yet so deep does the mystery remain that yesterday the police could not even say with certainty when the girl died.

The cautiously worded verdict of the medical examiner does not even say flat-footedly that her death was the result of that which the police charge. He says she would one day have become a mother, that her death followed the destruction of that expectation. But as to what destroyed potential motherhood, he is cautious. "Presumably" is the word he chooses in his report.

APPEALING FIGURE.

This same reticence rules in the point blank accusations of the police against those upon whom the law has laid its hand.

The police have arrested no one whom they flatly charge with responsibility for the girl's death.

They have arrested certain men and certain women—one of them a mere girl who flittered and scuttled when brought to court, who is so young the juvenile courts have proper jurisdiction over her.

But they charge no one of these men or women with the act which the medical examiner says "presumably" occurred. In each case those under arrest are accused of being accessories before or after the act.

The law has simply dropped its net broadcast, confident, perhaps, that among the fishes caught in that net may be found one or two or three who should be held accountable.

It will be for the Grand Jury to decide whether the catch shall be thrown back into the sea, or whether one or all shall be held captive and held to an accounting.

But the great heart of the world is not chiefly concerned with the law's disposition of the tragedy. The world is not aroused by concern for the fate of those responsible.

The girl herself, the dead girl who on Friday found a resting place after the sorrow of her last days and the pity of her end, is the figure most appealing among the dramatis personae of the tragedy.

Margaret Ward was the daughter of James Ward, who lives at No. 53 Northend street, Peabody.

KIND AND GENTLE.

She was about thirty-one years old. Her life had been simple, frank and above board, like the lives of the girls who were her friends.

She had worked at times in Peabody business houses, and those who worked side by side with her at these times have nothing but praise for the girl.

She was well liked by her intimates, and was in some sense a leader in the group of which she was one unit, in Peabody.

Her relations with them had been the cordial, friendly relations of any wholesome girl. There was nothing to distinguish her from other girls, except perhaps a little more than her share of loveliness, and a little more than her share of charm.

She was in all other ways just like other girls; a good chum, a stout friend in trouble, loyal, kind and gentle.

She had many friends. Among them was William Conlin. He lives at No. 4 Beaver street, Salem.

For some months those who knew them had remarked that the two found in each other much that was appealing and likeable.

They were together more and more, till their friends began to joke them about it, and the two seemed to be pleased with the good-natured teasing.

William Conlin lives with his mother, and more than once the girl went to his home and she and his mother were the hostess. There appears to have been a gentle courtesy about Margaret Ward that endeared her to older folk as well as to those of her own age.

One girl friend said: "I went with Mrs. Conlin to Conlin's home once, and she and Mrs. Conlin were almost like sisters, they were so affectionate."

NEXT SAW HER DEAD.

By and by their friends began to say that she and Conlin were "keeping company." When, a few weeks ago, Margaret Ward gave up her work and busied herself at home with sewing and other matters, the same friends smiled in sympathetic understanding.

"She and Will are going to be married," they told each other, and nodded, and wished both young folk well, and were glad.

But so far as can be found, Margaret Ward never said she was going to marry Will Conlin, nor did he ever tell his friends that they would wed. It was simply a matter that was "understood" among their intimates.

Conlin is a fine young fellow, industrious, attentive to his work, and with a capacity for making friends quickly.

Saturday, the first day of July, Margaret Ward told her family she would be away over the Fourth.

She left home Saturday afternoon, and when they next saw her, on Wednesday, she was dead and under circumstances which overwhelmed them with the most profound grief and anguish.

As to what happened during the last days or hours of Margaret Ward's life, there are only surmises. One fellow police official has outlined his hypothesis thus:

"Inwelcome motherhood, he believes, was the thing she had found what she thought was a way to escape it. For motherhood, most glorious of woman's experiences, may also be the most shameful and distressing.

POLICE THEORY.

In some way she went or was brought to the house on Warren street, Roxbury, that Saturday, he believes, and thereafter events moved swiftly.

It was her cries of anguish and pain, this official believes, that were heard that Saturday night.

Monday, at first—that is the hypothesis of the Salem official—she was taken violently ill, and the frightened men and women about her realized that her condition was serious.

Then, the police say, the girl asserted herself, despite her weak though she was, took command of the situation. She sent word to Peabody, this is alleged, to her family physician, and to an attorney.

The physician they name was Dr. J. J. Shanahan, prominent in Peabody and Salem. The attorney charged by the police with knowledge of the case is Thomas F. O'Connell, who was formerly a Representative in the Massachusetts House, from the Eleventh Essex District.

Thereafter, there is another gap in the story of Margaret Ward. She passed away the night or on the morning after the Fourth.

Some believe that in the interim, she had asserted—as she was dead as corry as noon on the Fourth. Thomas J. Riordon, who drove the automobile which took her to Peabody early Wednesday, says the girl was alive when she got into his car in Roxbury.

She walked out from the house," he said, "through a back gate. She held a handkerchief to her face. They were partly carrying her."

But on the other hand, an official working on the case says the autopsy shows the girl was dead by noon on Tuesday.

Tuesday night, the night of the Fourth, at 9 o'clock, Charles O'Connell called at the home of Sergeant Duffee of Salem, brother-in-law of the girl, at No. 139 Boston street, Salem.

Mrs. Duffee was not at home.

O'Connell, it is said, then told the girl was ill in Boston, and asked if she might be brought to Duffee's home.

When he left the house O'Connell went to Peabody, it is asserted, and found Sexton, and engaged him to go to Boston and get the girl. Other facts enter into the case here, but appear to have had no important function in what happened.

Two men and the girl started on the drive along the shore to Salem, on the early morning of the 5th of July.

Duffee was expecting to take into his home a sick girl, his sister-in-law, and believed her the police say.

But when the car arrived, and he stepped forward to look into the car, he cried out in agonizing distress:

"My God, the girl is dead."

For when the car stopped, the body had slumped forward to the floor of the car.

MYSTERY BEGINS.

That is the end of the tragedy of Margaret Ward. What activities were set afoot by her death concern her no longer.

She was just one of the myriads of girls who have loved too well, and who in a panic when disaster faced them have chosen the wrong path.

When she died? And how? And whose hand was responsible? These are the questions remaining to the police to solve.

For the Tragedy of Margaret Ward is ended.

Clear Mystery Over the Pittfield Family

4. Discovery of physical evidence, including letters and papers at the Warren street house.

5. Neighborhood statements of speaking cries heard from the Warren street house last Saturday night.

Investigations yesterday cleared up much of the mystery surrounding the "Mysterious Pittfield Family," which was what the police called the family which occupied the Warren street apartment where Margaret Ward, the girl who died, underwent the treatment which resulted in her death.

The prime mystery in connection with the family grew out of the fact that the two Pittfield girls under arrest insisted that their mother was dead, while the police believed the mother was alive.

Investigation yesterday revealed the fact that their own mother is dead, as they said, and that the woman whom the police seek is really their stepmother.

The "Pittfield Family" includes the following persons:

Mrs. Elizabeth G. Pittfield, who was the wife of F. C. Pittfield, till she divorced him June 5, 1915. She is a trained nurse.

Marian Pittfield, about twenty years old, who, like Mrs. Pittfield, is missing and is sought by the police.

District Attorney Pelletier says Mrs. Pittfield was last seen Wednesday morning at the South Station with a suit case. Search for her has been directed to Marlboro, where she is believed to have relatives or friends.

Oliver Pittfield, the son, has told his story to the police and helped them in every possible way. He works in a hardware store, and says he knew nothing of this tragedy till the police questioned him.

SEEK ONE SISTER.

Marian Pittfield, the sister, did not appear at her usual place of employment Monday morning. Word was sent to her employers that she was sick. The police are hunting for her. Her brother was unable to locate her.

Geraldine and Rhona Pittfield and Margaret Stewart were brought into court and arraigned together. Sergeant Flynn, who has worked on the case, said they had hindered, rather than helped the police, and as a result, they were placed under substantial bail and sent to the Charles street jail.

Geraldine Pittfield, the youngest, only sixteen, furnished an amazing picture in court. Her sister and Miss Stewart were calm and self-possessed, but Geraldine went further.

She seemed to be enjoying herself tremendously, and fondled a lap dog which she carried, tittering and laughing at the court proceedings.

The three girls were questioned by the probation officer before the arraignment. They told nothing, steadfastly denying all acquaintance with Margaret Ward, and all knowledge of her death.

When the officers started to take the girls to jail, they took a lunch with them from the Court House, and ate it in perfect self-possession on the way to the Charles street jail.

There that dog and another, belonging to Miss Stuart, were taken from the girls and sent to the Animal Rescue League's headquarters to be cared for.

The three young women were taken into custody after the police had questioned other residents in the Warren street house.

The three denied all knowledge of Miss Ward. They said Miss Stuart was the housekeeper for them, and that they two, Geraldine and Rhona, worked in department stores.

SEEN ABOUT PAST.

When taken to the station house they laughed and talked unconcernedly throughout the afternoon and until they were put in separate cells.

They were reticent about their past in answer to police questions, but investigation yesterday located a man who had been a neighbor of the family, and who said:

"These two girls told the truth when they said their mother is dead. The present Mrs. Pittfield is their stepmother, though she may be the own mother of Marian Pittfield, who is missing, and of Oliver Pittfield—Oliver—the son.

"The stepmother is a trained nurse. The three daughters have worked in a department store, and Miss Stewart was a sort of boarder.

"Their father lives in Canada. The girls used to go back there every Summer—to see him, I suppose.

BACK BAY IS FOR CONTROL OF BIRTHS

Club Will Assist Propaganda by Meeting This Week; Pastors to Speak at Another Session

A campaign for the spread of birth control knowledge and literature which is planned to rival that which New York experienced during the Winter, has opened in Boston. Following the arrest and appearance in court, Friday, charged with having in his possession and distributing birth control literature, arrangement have been made for mass meetings to be held this week in the interests of the propaganda.

On Wednesday evening it is planned to hold a birth control meeting at the Maverick Congregational Church, East Boston. Those who will include, it is planned, Dr. Bolton Hall, author, and Dr. George Brown, pastor of the church. Mrs. Hall, president of the Political Equality Club and secretary of the Religious Society, Herbert S. Swan, organizer, secretary of the Free Speech League, Jesse Lynch Williams, secretary of the Progressive League, and Professor Thomas Nixon Carver of Harvard University. Van Kleeck Adams, also to address the meeting.

On Thursday evening a meeting will be held in the studio of Norman Hapgood, 150 Huntington avenue, at which Mrs. Sanger will speak. Other meetings are contemplated throughout the city as many of those in New York had to be cancelled because the police refused to issue permits. Efforts to obtain halls in Boston have been unsuccessful.

During the Spring, lectures and circulars were distributed in Chinatown. Both were made, but no arrests followed. Police officials were unable to trace the propaganda.

Strict Measures Planned to Prevent the Spread of Paralysis to Other States; Red Cross Help

By International News Service

Washington, July 8.—The United States Public Health Service, co-operating with the New York city and State authorities, will impose strict regulations to prevent the spread of infantile paralysis from New York.

The details were perfected at conferences in New York between Dr. W. F. Rucker, assistant surgeon-general of the Public Health Service, and Health Commissioner Harris and Dr. Anderson of New York. Among the steps to be taken will be the following:

1 The establishment of a system of quarantine. Persons who come in contact with the disease will be required to inform the authorities.

2 Examination of carriers. Persons suspected of being carriers will be subjected to careful examination to determine if they are carriers of the germs. Cases will be reported to the United States Public Health Service. This is done chiefly to check means of learning whether a person carries the germs.

3 Rules and quarantine on houses in which cases of disease occur. Strict rules will be established governing the movements of persons living in houses where infantile paralysis exists. Any violation of the health officer's declaration will be as infectious as small pox.

TO PREVENT SPREAD.

4 Measures will be taken to prevent the spread of the disease to other States. A quarantine station at New York city has been established by the Health Service. Inspection of persons leaving the city will be made at this station. Persons who show evidence of contagious disease will be detained.

The Bureau of Immigration will also take steps to prevent the spread of the disease. Persons leaving New York city will be inspected at the railroad stations and ferry houses. Persons who show the symptoms of the

OUTINGS FOR THOUSANDS POOR FOLK

Boston Philanthropic Institutions Providing Summer Rest and Recreation for Army of Persons

Impoverished men who are convalescing from illness have special places for them in the Morgan Memorial Settlement at South Athol.

More than fifty boys taken from Boston streets are being given military training at the camp on Lake Massapoag, Sharon, under the charge of Rev. M. R. Deming, who has for twenty-nine years conducted a large Summer enterprise in this town for mothers and children which, it is claimed, largely is giving rest to those mothers who are temporarily out of work.

Hundreds of tired mothers with their children will soon get a long distance from Boston by being transferred at Mother Bee's Beach under the auspices of the Lend a Hand Association.

ARTERIAL ROADS TO BE BUILT

Co-operative Plan Becomes Effective when President Wilson Signs Bill.

NATION-WIDE IMPROVEMENT

In Next Five Years $150,000,000 Will Be Expended on Road Construction.

Washington, D. C., July 8—Co-operation between the National Government and the States in highways improvement has begun on a comprehensive program.

In the next five years $150,000,000 will be expended on a half-and-half plan, upon arterial roads selected by the highway authorities of the forty-eight states subject to the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture.

The co-operative plan became effective when President Wilson affixed his signature to the measure, one of the last bills passed by the conferees of the two bills passed by Congress, the Senate and House having adopted different measures. In greater degree the Senate bill found approval, for it directed quite positively the expenditure of the money and required the maintenance of the roads after construction by imposing a discontinuance of further funds for neglect in the [illegible].

Average Motor Will Make Fourteen Million Revolutions in One Year.

By MERLE SHEPARD

[illegible] words [illegible] car [illegible] manufacturer [illegible] the country [illegible] and tests in the way of feats of speed and endurance are being made by both the car makers and dealers.

This is by far the [illegible] which from its nature taxes its endurance to an amount far in excess of what is encountered in ordinary driving is sure to reap the benefits in added patronage by those who have followed the [illegible]

[illegible] tory and [illegible] makes an interesting story. What [illegible] accomplished and shows [illegible] tests are a direct measure of the progress of the industry and of the records made by ordinary stock [illegible] that were hardly [illegible] time.

It is by [illegible] work that can best be told. The average car is driven very close to 6,000 miles a year. On the average size wheel, which measures about thirty-four inches across the diameter, this means 3,800,000 revolutions of each of the [illegible] motor [illegible] B.

IN TERMS OF MILLIONS

During this time the faithful carburetor will [illegible] in sufficient quantity to fill the volume of each cylinder 25,500,000 times on a four-cylinder car and 42,200,000 times on a six. A like number of sparks has also been provided by the ignition apparatus for the four and six-cylinders. The volume of gas drawn through the lungs of the engine, which functions are those of the carburetor and intake manifold, will total [illegible] compelled to do as much work in the course of a few days as it would in many months or even years in ordinary service. In determining the value of the tests to the ordinary car owner or buyer the work that is done under [illegible] tle wide open for fourteen days at a stretch, as they have been in some tests, they are receiving more severe stresses than they would have in any [illegible] seldom your foot is carried flat against the floor boards with the accelerator pedal down as far as it will go, you will realize how severe its conditions of [illegible] run under full load conditions are, as compared to the ordinary running.

Under conditions of similar speed the life of motors will vary with the reversals of direction of connecting-rod motion. It is this factor, interpreted simply in terms of the number of strokes made, which tells the tale of wear rather than that of time or distance. Two cars may have been standing in the garage for several months out of the year, receiving no wear at all, and while it will depreciate in value, owing to the progress made in the art in the meanwhile, the car [illegible] wear.

On the other hand, a car driven on [illegible] low gears during [illegible] part of its career will be put to harder work and receive more wear than a car that has been driven a much greater distance on the higher or direct gear. The parts of a motor which wear are those which carry the [illegible] mitted through the hands of the plate. As the [illegible]

A statistician has gathered together some interesting facts relative to the manufacture of automobiles. He took as a basis the Ford River land campaign, 1,000 feet per day and then figured out the average length of the cars, which is approximately 14½ feet.

That is to say, if the Ford cars would extend in a straight line for a distance of [illegible] feet, each car being [illegible] stream of cars, we would reach an unbroken line from Detroit to New York and back to Detroit as far as Utica.

WILL CLIMB PIKES PEAK OR BUST

Those Who Are Contemplating Attending the Contest Urged to Make Reservations.

MANY CARS ARE ENTERED

Automobile Clubs Within One Hundred Miles Are Planning for Special Tours.

The first running of a hill climbing contest over the highest highway in the world, Pikes Peak, will be August 10-11-12 next. The first day will be given over to motorcycles and the other two for the automobile events which include a Class F, 225 cubic inches and under; Class C, 231 to 300 cubic inches; and a Class D free-for-all. The battle event is for the Penrose Challenge Trophy given by Spencer Penrose, valued at $1,300, and $2,000 to be divided between the winner and second place.

The course measures twelve miles, 2200 feet, and in order to negotiate this climb to the summit of the famous mountain, cars will have to conquer a rise of 4606 feet. With a maximum grade of 166 per cent and an average of 7 per cent, with numerous turns, an exciting contest is assured. Furthermore, it is a contest in which driving skill will play a big part.

The entries to date include no less than ten well known cars and it is expected that at least twice that number will be entered shortly. For the motorcycle events fastest and most of the fastest machines in the country will face the starter.

Motorists and manufacturers who contemplate attending the speed event at Pikes Peak are urged to make reservations at once, for the event promises to draw the largest crowd that ever visited Colorado Springs. Accordingly, ample facilities for accommodating the visitors are being made, and the railroads are arranging special rates.

FANS HINT PLOT IN EVERS' SUSPENSION TO ROB HUB OF FLAG

Boston Rooters Voice Disapproval of Tener's Act—Claim Trojan's Language No Harsher Than That Used by Zimmerman, Who Received Much Lighter Sentence

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

A week ago today it would have been practically an impossibility to convince a Boston "fan" that the Braves were not going to win the National League pennant. Today it's an entirely different story, for [illegible] don't hold the belief that the Braves won't cop, there [illegible] that the absence of Johnny Evers will result in the [illegible] in the effort.

One man never made a ball club, but in the last few years Boston fans have found out that one man has had considerable to do with [illegible]

[illegible] suspension. The [illegible] Wells before [illegible] Tener [illegible] for [illegible] the [illegible] Tener wasn't a trifle harsher than Wm. Howard Taft would be when he vetoed that it was the truth and the ab[illegible] truth. What he said to John Tener wasn't a trifle harsher than Wm. Howard Zimmerman said to the same individual at Lenox, Park during last season.

Boston fans are wondering today if the powers that be in the National [illegible]

While his language during Wednesday's game in Boston was considerably emphatic and better [illegible] there are others than Mr. Tener who contend that it was the truth and the ab[illegible] truth. What he said to John Tener wasn't a trifle harsher than Wm. Howard Zimmerman said to the same individual at Lenox Park during last season.

EVERS DRAWS TEN DAYS

[illegible] Tener [illegible] immediately after [illegible] it was announced that President Tener suspended Evers Ebbets of the Brooklyn club, burst into print with a [illegible] would prefer charges against Evers and bladings [illegible] that both these men [illegible] moments or him during the [illegible] Evers [illegible] series at Braves Field.

Why they wanted, did Ebbets refused to [illegible] Brooklyn left Boston on Saturday night and Evers wasn't planned into [illegible] today. He didn't get into a jam until the following Wednesday. Just what induced the czar of baseball to hold back his decision until that date?

One thing which President Tener and the other magnates in the National League should bear in mind is the fact that Boston is some baseball city. They should remember that some years back when the outlook wasn't always so bright for the old league that Boston responded nobly and helped to keep it going. They should recall that the old triumvirate put money into the Giants when the Giants weren't Giants and when the New York magnates needed money.

HUB CAPITAL HELPED N. Y.

They should remember that out of this money that Boston capital put into the New York club no great amount has come back into the coffers of those who put it in. Further, they should recall that it was right here in Boston that the greatest baseball park in the country was erected. And also that it was a Boston team which saved the old league from severe reverses in 1914. The money by the Braves in that year brought thousands into the ball parks who would not [illegible] otherwise.

In recent years Boston hasn't figured in any too favorable light in National League circles. Claim [illegible] been made that the club possesses a number of rowdies. Only this week the statement is here made that no member of the Braves has ever [illegible] record of any action [illegible] of etiquette.

No [illegible] of them has hurled his hat at a player. Nor has one of them been arrested, no reflection intended for any American League player as the one [illegible] has hurled [illegible] and [illegible] at [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

According to the report from Greenwich, Charles Andria, a twelve-year-old boy, bit through the rubber core of a ball and swallowed a quantity of the fluid contained within. He became ill instantly, and, according to the report, is now in a Greenwich hospital in a critical condition, with his life despaired of.

At the present time, according to persons supposed to know, there are but three liquid balls in use in this country. In all three the substance in the core is heavy and sluggish. It will not run and to partake of any quantity of it a person would actually have to devour it intentionally. It would not puncture the sack and accidentally swallow any great amount.

Those are among the most questions of pugilism today. Dillon is confident that he can beat Willard and win in a way so decisive that there will not be room for argument

But how many aces with this [illegible] and a half inches, weighing 165 [illegible] reach can outmaster a [illegible] reach?

Jack Dillon rates to-day as the ace of [illegible] in the world of pugilism. Jess Willard, judged by comparative [illegible] Dillon is the better man. But can [illegible]

DILLON'S RECORD IS GOOD

The "Giant Killer" ruled out to Frank Norris [illegible] during that Willard [illegible] the second Blood Pot carnival. It counted [illegible] toward the Little part of their fight [illegible] Norris took like a winner. Willard didn't [illegible] Gunboat Smith [illegible] Johnson over Willard. So will "Bonecrusher" Washburn, and those beat Johnson those men

Willie Ritchie to Join Military Camp

San Francisco, Cal., July 8.—Willie Ritchie, former lightweight champion, announced his intention today of learning the rudiments of another profession of fighting and will go into training next Monday as a soldier at the Monterey, Cal., military camp for civilians.

Ritchie signed the enlistment rolls as a recruit for four weeks instruction under United States army officers. The former champion wrote his real name, G. A. Nielsen.

I can beat Willard—I know I can," declared the Filipinian heavyweight. "All I want is a trial. I'll fight him any distance, any time anywhere. Before I fought Moran I said that if I didn't beat the Pittsburgher decisively I would donate my share of the proceeds to charity. This same thing goes if I fight Willard.

THE WORD OF DOUBT, FAILURE, REGRET

Here is a picture of millions of lives—dreariness, disappointment and the great "IF" standing up against the sky, perpetual reminder and regret.

IN life's landscape the most conspicuous thing toward the west where the sun sets in failure is IF.

So many lives are graveyards of hope and possibility, and on the tombstone of each hope IF is the one word.

As small almost as any word in the language, as big and powerful as all the failures and all the disappointments is the IF, reaching from the earth to the sky and blocking the path.

A wise man, asked if he would live his life over again, replied:

"No, there would be too many big IFS to climb over; I'm glad to have them behind me. But IF I could begin again and leave out these ifs, then I would live the life over."

IF youth knew—there is one of the biggest of all the IFS that stretch in a row from the cradle to the grave.

IF youth knew, the years would not be wasted and old age made the land of regret.

IF youth knew, the experience of others would be protection, and each would not be condemned to the same bitter experiences.

IF youth knew, it would live without the IF, and multiply life's value by a million.

IF old age COULD, it would pull the IFS out of its past, one by one, as weeds are pulled from a garden. BUT (and BUT is the sad brother of IF) old age can NOT. It looks back along the row of IFS and BUTS that make up life, sighs, and says: "IF only I had known," and after a few more IFS steps down presently into the grave, with this last: "IF I come back to earth again I'll get rid of the IFS!"

Youth does not know old age cannot undo the past, and so we struggle along from generation to generation.

But, fortunately, it is not ALL stagnation and repetition. Youth knows more now than it did ten thousand years ago; age has perfected the art of teaching.

IF is still a big word, a big obstacle in the path. It is repeated with every sentence in the story of failure. It is a blot on plans for the future.

We have the surgery of the body that eliminates parts unnecessary or diseased. We should have a surgery of the mind, and the doctor should be WILL POWER, and cut out from our list of words the IF and its doubtful brothers—BUT, PERHAPS, UNLESS, etc.

Could you imagine any greater difference than that between the young man who says "I will succeed IF I can," and the other young man who cuts out the dangerous word and says "I will succeed, I can."

Only a difference of two letters, yet there is the difference between success and failure in those two letters.

As long as memory is the chain of IFS. "IF only I had studied and made the best use of my time when I was young." Study NOW, it is not too late.

"IF I had realized how little foolish pleasures amount to, how worthless are the false ambitions that absorbed my energy."

"If I had known the value of time."

"IF I had listened to age and experience instead of my own folly."

"IF I had saved my money; IF I had taken care of my health; IF I had let drink alone"

In the lives of nations, in the history of science, the IF stands out. When Galileo discovered that the earth went around the sun they threatened to burn him alive, made him kneel and recant, saying to him, "IF you teach that doctrine, truth or falsehood, the vulgar will lose their faith in religion.

When Columbus wanted to set out on his new road to India, the road that was to lead him to America, he was nearly dissuaded by those who said, "IF you do you will come to the end of the ocean and fall over the edge."

The Scots were kept from using the labor saving fanning mills for winnowing grain by those who said, "IF you do that you will make the wind blow to suit yourself and interfere with the Bible which says, "The wind bloweth where it listeth."

And they were frightened by others who said, "IF you use the wind to winnow your grain you make yourself a partner of the devil, who is 'Prince of the powers of the air.'"

Good clergymen in the United States objected to taking the census, saying, "IF you do that you sin. Read what the Old Testament says about the numbering of the people of Israel."

One of the greatest of Greek painters harmed progress with his saying, "IF we have no slaves there will be no leisure class and therefore no thinking class."

He is dead and gone, and we know that because slavery was abolished and WHERE slavery was abolished men used their brains and devised slaves of steel, driven by the power of steel and electricity, able to do the work of a million slaves.

There was no IF in the mind of Napoleon when he planned to take his army over the Alps in the dead of Winter.

There was no IF in the mind of Jefferson when he wrote his Declaration of Independence that called men equal.

IF the English had caught him they would have hanged him, but that and a thousand other IFS were pushed aside by those that created this country.

One single IF in the mind of Washington would see us now still British colonists, receiving our laws from across the ocean and paying our taxes according to a will three thousand miles away.

Luckily all the defeats and disappointments, all the victories of the English, all the weakness and irresolution of his own men could not force a single IF into Washington's mind.

He had said to himself, "I am going to beat the English and make America free." He never added "IF I can."

And that is why the country is free today.

In this admirable cartoon by Balfour Ker stands powerfully illustrated a lesson for every boy and girl and man and woman.

Plan your life without the IFS or the BUTS

Decide carefully what you can do—then DO it. "I CAN AND I WILL, AND THERE IS NO IF ABOUT IT."

Take that for your motto, and in proportion to the strength that is in you, you will win.

Cut the meat in bits, chop all the bones to pieces, put them up the bones to pieces, put them on top of the meat. Add a few herbs and a cupful to the meat and pour over the three quarts of cold water. Simmer the soup for twelve hours, slow fire. Then turn the soup into a soup pan and let it get cold in the ice box, and to three pints of the soup off the cream and set it aside. Then add the soup and let it stand two hours to clear. Then put the soup through a fine sieve. Pass the soup and the cream separately. To serve, heat the soup, season with pepper and salt, and pour over the cream. Serve at once. Have the soup very hot.

Take one half cup of butter, one cupful sugar, two tablespoonfuls of milk, a teaspoonful of baking powder, one quarter teaspoonful salt, two eggs, one tablespoonful of vanilla. Work the butter and sugar to a cream with one quarter of the milk and flour to make a paste together. Heat the eggs, add all the ingredients prepared and mix them well together, using the remaining flour to roll out. Shape as thinly as possible, cut into small cakes and bake in a quick oven. Do not make too large quantities, but mix as you need it, as the cakes are more delicate when made in this manner.

CARROT MARMALADE

Carrots contain a large amount of sugar and by the addition of a few deep color make a very attractive-looking preserve.

Take two pounds of carrots, three pints of water, three pounds of sugar, one ounce of root ginger, the juice of two oranges and a pinch of cochineal. Scrub and scrape the carrots and cut them lengthwise into narrow strips. Let them to steep in cold water for twelve hours, then change the water and allow them to steep again for the same length of time. The steeping is to draw out the strong flavor from the carrots and they will. Put the carrots in a large ginger juice of lemon and water into a preserving pan and boil for a quarter of an hour. Then put in the sugar and leave until the next day. Repeat the process, boiling or steaming the carrots until the syrup is quite transparent, which may take about three or four hours. The boiling should be quick, but the carrots gently, never simmering. Then put in glasses and tie.

BAKED SHAD

Wipe dry and wash a good sized shad, make a stuffing of bread crumbs, butter, salt, pepper, sage and onion, and fill the fish with it. Sew up the fish, put in a baking pan, dredge with flour, season with salt and pepper, put bits of butter on the fish, add a cupful of water and bake in a moderate oven, basting frequently. ### CHAPTER LII.
The Elixir of Youth.

WITHIN the council chamber of the Black Order stood two figures, unfamiliar to Arthur Varney and his associates one was an aged woman, the other a man of [illegible] appearance, despite their decrepit physical condition they were [illegible]

The crash of the brazen gong at the [illegible] by the skeleton hand of the Master announced that the visitors were to be ushered into the inner room. The black brotherhood, at a signal from the leader, [illegible] bowed on their entrance on either side forming a double row through which the newcomers were led to the [illegible] curtains. Here they [illegible] among themselves at each other's [illegible] Then seemed to be [illegible] the [illegible]

Varney, holding the forehead meditatively, [illegible] the door and [illegible] from the evil place. A few minutes later he was walking along the [illegible] in the glorious sunlight of another late spring day. There was an [illegible] look of indecision on his usually [illegible]

I can stand it no longer," murmured he. "Myra has [illegible] and her faith has been so strong in me. I know she does not love me, but I am not a monster. I am human and have [illegible] I must [illegible] a clean breast of it all. Maybe she will care for me [illegible] as I am honest at last with her. That is the truest test of love. And I do love her. The promises of the Master are beautiful, but I am not so sure as I [illegible] he will keep them."

And then he looked guiltily about, even fearfully, for though afraid his thoughts might be [illegible] to the mysterious mind of the evil genius [illegible]

He went [illegible] about whether had been [illegible] When Varney finally perched on a [illegible] top of rocks overlooking the [illegible] he proved into a telephone booth in a small roadhouse to report his location.

Very [illegible] came the voice of the High Master of the Black Order. "He will bear [illegible] Go to him and tell him to visit [illegible] house, where he will receive a new order from me, which he is to obey implicitly. Tell him to be waiting on the street, south of the Maynard mansion, in about an hour."

The man at the place and slowly sauntered up to the [illegible] Varney, who was disturbed [illegible] by this sudden reminder of the evil brotherhood.

"[illegible]" exclaimed, as the two exchanged the [illegible] of the Order. "How did you know I was here?"

I did not [illegible] you were here. But the supreme One did and sent me with a message to you. He knows all things at all times."

And there was a tone of sinister threat in the voice as he [illegible] the command. Varney looked at his watch and nodded.

I will obey, as I have always done," he replied. "But I am beginning to be discouraged, for I fear that we cannot succeed."

Ah brother, do not dare to tell the Master that you are losing faith. That is almost as bad as [illegible] treachery. Adieu. Fail not brother."

They separated, with another exchange of symbolic [illegible] of the hands, and Varney walked slowly in the direction of Myra's home. Back in the [illegible] of unholies, as the inner room of the [illegible] could well be named, the [illegible] languidly upon a divan, her [illegible] of the two eager faces before him [illegible] the visitors on their knees, were [illegible] almost fearfully for the help.

"You can give us the magic potion if you will, O Master! Will you not reward us for what we have already done?" begged the [illegible] man.

Ah I gave you what was your meed. Have you not both wealth and power?"

"Yes! But the greatest boon of life has been denied us, after all our fiendish servitude to you!"

"Ay, we want YOUTH, without which power, wealth and everything else is as naught," echoed the old woman, wobbling unsteadily upon her aged knees.

The Master laughed.

"And if I grant you this boon, will you do what I demand, in bringing about the destruction of Myra Maynard and Dr. Alden?"

Both nodded emphatically.

The Master arose from the divan and walked to an [illegible] carved cabinet, on which demoniac figures [illegible] implements of torture, were interwoven. He drew from a drawer a small black lacquered jewel box. Bringing this back to the divan, he unlocked it with tantalizing deliberation and drew out a smaller case.

The aged eyes glittered with [illegible] finally drew from the inner [illegible] small vials, filled with [illegible] and powders.

"The Elixir of Vision!" he said [illegible] it up. "Would you like [illegible]?

No, we have seen the [illegible] hundreds of years," answered [illegible] "You know what we [illegible]

Drive away the [illegible] of years," said the old woman, "and we [illegible] all else which we now could desire."

The Master smiled again as he replied. "Souls [illegible] you have [illegible] Take [illegible] ready bargained [illegible] But have a [illegible] substance which you crave.

He held in the [illegible] a [illegible] labeled [illegible] elixir of youth."

"Yes, yes," and both [illegible] toward him, [illegible] with [illegible]

"Will you [illegible] Will you [illegible] about their destiny on [illegible]

"Anything! We will [illegible] with doomsday!" they cried in [illegible]

"Very good—or [illegible] and the Master arose [illegible] into a little [illegible] old woman.

She drank it eagerly, and staggered, as though the fluid had burned her lips and [illegible] a note to Arthur [illegible] at the address [illegible] Then proceed[illegible] [illegible] and bowed [illegible] Whispered [illegible] [illegible] which I have [illegible] and you are fairer— [illegible] Cleopatra" [illegible] set up haughtily and [illegible] of the wives of a [illegible]

Come to think of it. ALL girls are doggone dangerous.

I care not who makes the LAWS of the Nation, for now and then along comes a SONG like the latest hit, "You're a Dangerous Girl," that makes H. Leander Lawmaker look foolish.

For instance, this Girl Proposition. What's the good of laws? Of the Police Reserves? Of the Fire Department?

"Don't You Think?"

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

"ONE should be earnest, shouldn't one?"
Said Isabella Foam.
"Too many people think of fun
In this poor earthly home.
One ought too study high and low
And not hang back and shrink.
One finds so much one ought to know—

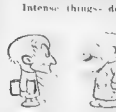
"WHEN Mr. Socrates was here
And Mr. Plato, too,
They found so much that wasn't clear.
So many tasks to do.
If THEY gave up their time to learn
Why bubbles never sink.
We ought to study in our turn
And reason—don't you think?"



DEAR little Isabella Foam,
So deep and so intense
One day, when through your golden dome
Has strayed some common sense
You'll meet a husky, handsome boy
Who doesn't care for drink
And take a whirl at household joy
That's better—don't you think?"

As to the Cost of Living

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

Health Commissioner Emerson of New York has been touring the striking garment workers that by going without meat, pie and a few other things a family of five can gain weight on forty-five cents a day.—News item.

WHY make daily trips to th e butcher's
And run up the household expense
On a limit of forty-five cents?
Why crave a luxurious diet
Like soup, meat potatoes and such,
When a quart of corn meal and a stewed apple peel
Will keep you from hunger's fell clutch?

PHILANTHROPISTS gladly will tell you
The way that the wolf can be foiled,
By saving one's means and investing in beans
And serving chopped hay, nicely boiled.
They say that you'll never fear famine
If you keep nice stale bread on your shelves,
It's the wholesomest way to raise children, they say
Though we doubt if they try it themselves.

IF hunger still gnaws at your vitals
You have only to pull up your belts;
It's a beautiful scheme, and it works like a dream—
When tried upon somebody else
And yet, though these counsels are kindly,
Some folks are so brutally rude
That with noses in air they quite gruffly declare
That they'd rather have regular food.

I PUT THEM IN MY VEST POCKET
I GET ONE OF THEM

BOAT TICKETS HE JUST BOUGHT
NOR THE OTHER ALBAER
WEAR A SOFT COLLAR WHEN HE NEED'S IT
WHERE'S THAT CAN OPENER? SAY I'VE GOT EVERYTHING IN ITS PLACE LIKE AN INDEX BUT SOMEBODY LOST THE KEY
WHOSE DID YOU GET THAT BOILER?
I'M FOOLING 'EM ALRIGHT THEY DON'T KNOW I'VE WORE THIS IT A FEW KELLYS

Whiskurs and Preserdunts

By Willie Joans.

I ASKED Pa one Mister Hews had whiskurs on his face and when he started to tell me Ma she got [illegible] Pa he sneared at her and sed no guessed he new awl a bout them he sed whiskurs was nuthe hare on the face cuzzed a heerd and they wouldn't gro out when a feller was yung and longed for em and [illegible] waist he had to lose half an our every morning shaving.

I asked him wood whiskurs help Mister Hews to get elected presedunt and he sed no the chanses is he will get elected in spite of em. Pa he sed Mister Hews got a skar on his face when he was yung and so he razed a krop to cuver up the skar and Ma she sed that mite be so but most men she ever seen wood look twenty times better if their faces was awl covered up with whiskurs and when I asked [illegible]

I looked up the pitcures in my histry book and seen awl the presedunts and akkording to that it [illegible] how they wore their faces. Pres[illegible] Abrahm Lincon had sum whiskurs as long as a gote and [illegible] Garfield and Harrys son, and a many [illegible] Hews had an awful long beerd. I betcher they call whiskurs alfalfa now beawss Hays wore a prch a long beerd and alfalfa is a kind of hay.

Pa he groned when I sed that but I'm sho you you never got off enpraising with so much brains in it don't get jellus. Linkun was a grate presserdunt and he had funny whiskurs on his chin jest like the fur Ma warres on the nek of her dres in summur.

Cleaveland and Taft and Roseavelt was bote down like portears and Taft was long and wavie and lite like pitchers I seen of Vikings and Roosevelts was [illegible] bing freash and awl the other presdents didn't hase no whiskurs.

Washtingtons beerd was all ways absunt from his face and yet he was a dandy fiter while Grant had a beerd awl over his face and he [illegible] think whiskurs has sum [illegible] with presserdunts awltho prinse Wilson had a beerd it mite helped him. Pa he sed it couldn't make him enny worse whatever he ment by that but Gee whizz it wood tak so much beerd to cover W[illegible] caught in tipewriter when he was a kid.

Ma she sed Nay poleon had no beerd and he was a good fi[illegible] Pa sed General Lee had a beerd and he was a good fitur but both lost and I sed Pa wood Mister Hews bee [illegible] presserdunt and Pa sed yes a hrul as awl the barbers wood vote against him as well as the safetee razur makers but Ma she sed poo poo thats awl you kno a [illegible] presserdunt beawss he [illegible] doant cut him self and cut his face and tak his mind offen afairs of stait whatever she ment.

I ast Pa honust did whiskurs help presserdunt canderdates and he says you betcher they do he cess it mniks them eezier to diss and men like Tom Powurs can dash off the pitcher of Mister Hews beerd and awl in two minutes and thats awl I kno a bout whiskurs and beerds and presserdunts exsept that you just betcher Imie goin to raze a big thick beerd awl over my face when I grow up and then I wunt haf to wash my face at awl.

His Sympathetic Response

Hid the View.

"DO I understand you to say," said the lawyer, looking hard at the principal witness, "that upon hearing a noise in the hall you rose and, [illegible] a candle, and went to the head of the stairs, that a burglar was at the foot of the stairs, and you did not see him? Are you blind?"

"What I tell you the truth!" stamped [illegible] the roots of his hair.

"The whole truth," was the stern reply.

Then replied the witness, thrusting aside his damp, clinging locks and wiping the perspiration from his clammy brow, "my wife was in front of me."

Saving Money.

"A DOLLAR box of candy for me, hubby? Really, I must curb such extravagance."

"I bought you one frequently before we were married."

"But things are different now. Instead of a dollar box of candy it would have been better to have gotten me a 10-cent box of [illegible] sport coat, and that Spring parasol I want so much."

Her Economy.

A GOOD dinner, a good novel, and a good pipe of tobacco. He was just going to strike a match to light the latter, when she, remembering the new match tax, intervened.

"Here you are, dear. See how economical I have been. I've bought some wax tapers, to save you buying so many matches."

"Now that is thoughtful of you," he replied, taking hold of the taper. At the same time he absent mindedly proceeded to light the taper by striking one of his precious matches.

Another collapse of the economy campaign.

THE OTHER night
I READ on the bill of fare
AT an up-State inn
THAT George Washington
STOPPED there
AND IF he did
I KNOW why he left
HE ORDERED asparagus
AND THEY charged him.

AND WHEN you've been keeping house
THIS EATING around
GETS ON your nerves
MY FRIEND, Jim
WHO DIGS the bait.
FOR a friend of mine
TOOK ME out
TO AN Italian dinner
AND THEY put cheese
IN MY soup
AND IT made me sick
AND THE next night.
AT ANOTHER place
I ORDERED soup
AND THE waiter brought me.
A PLATE.
WITH NOTHING in it
AND IT was wet
AND I told him
AND HE said
"THAT'S ALL right
"THAT'S YOUR soup"
THAT'S AN old one

I HEARD it first
IN '87.
BUT NEVER mind
AND YOU can't tell
FROM THE outside
WHAT THE price is
ON THE inside
AND YOU can't argue
AND [illegible]
YOU'RE SUSPICIOUS
AND CAN'T eat
AND IF they're high
YOU CAN'T afford
ALL YOU want
AND THERE you are YOU JUST keep on
ALL THE time
AND AT night
MAYBE YOU dream
THAT YOU'RE back home.
AND MASHED potatoes.
AND HOME-MADE pie.
AND EVERYTHING.
AND YOU eat it
AND THEN roll over.
ON YOUR back
AND DREAM
YOU'VE BEEN [illegible]
FOR NINETY dollars
FOR YOUR dinner
AND YOU [illegible]
AND WAKE up
I THANK you

MISSUS WING-BARRINGTON was over to our house la[illegible] nite I herned to spell her naim when I saw her card wich she left It is a hard naim to reemember but she is easy to reemember, she is so tall & fat She is heavier than Pa.

What a deer littel man yure son is, she sed to Ma, what is he going to be when he grows up?

I deant know yet myself, sed Ma, perhaps he will be a lawyer, he likes to talk & argue & he changes his mind easily, sed Ma.

My son Virgil is going to be a poet, sed Missus Wing Barrington. I have felt all along he will be a poet, so I gaiv him a nice sounding naim. His father wanted to call him Mike, she sed. Imagine a poet named Mike or Steve, she sed.

I deant know, sed Pa, if I remember rite thare was a gentleman naimed Stevie Crane that rote sum wonderfully good stuff. Maybe even better stuff than this yungster of yures will ever do

Well, sed Missus Wing Barrington, I am not sure how grate my littel Virgil will beecum, but he is extreemly sensitiv & luvs Bury I am going to send him to a grate poet & have a poet tutor him well he gits old enuff

Send him over here any time sed Pa. I will be glad to give him a few pointers

Indeed, sed Ma's frend, I was not aware that you rote poetry

Oh, I dabble in verse, sed Pa. I have had sum of my poems considered & reefused by the best magazeens in Ameriky, sed Pa.

It is a wunderful gift, sed Missus Wing Barrington. I know my boy will becum one of the world's grate dreemers.

My mother used to think I wud be a grate poet, sed Pa; she sed I had the saim shaip hed as Lord Byron; but I deant know, I guess it must have been a littel different.

Perhaps it was thicker inside sed Ma's frend Maybe you had a ingrowing skull.

Then Ma laffed & Pa got mad & went into the library

Yure husband wasent agreeble impressed with me, I am afrade, sed Ma's frend Sum way, she sed, I do not get along very well with most men The wimmen all are [illegible] of me

I can easily understand that, sed Ma You are so tackful I heap you will cum often. Wen you are here, she sed, I will always know that my husband is in the library

My poor deer husband is ded, sed Missus Wing Barrington. He was always delicate & he caught cold one time wen he was cumming up stairs in his stocking feet. I shall never wed aggen

I am sorry indeed, sed Ma, it is terribly hard to be without the luv & protekshun of a husband My husband is like a big granite rock

I shud imagine so, sed Ma's frend, from looking at his hed. Well, deer, she sed, I must get hoam Do cum & see me soon.

After she was gone Pa calm out of the libary & talked to Ma but dident say anything moar about being a poet.

Going Through the Family Album

Remember how Great-Aunt Elvira used to take us through her red plush family album (one of her wedding presents back in the Rutherford B. Hayes administration) on a personally and somewhat spitefully conducted tour among our ancestors?

"ARE you sure your hands are clean?

"Everything sticks to plush so. Here, let me turn the pages for you.

"That man with the funny whiskers? Why they ain't funny Let me tell you that Jonas Hicks was a very stylish man in his day. What?

"Why, laws me, don't you know? He was your great-great-grandfather. He's dead now, leastways, we all believe he is. He went off to th' Mexican war and none of us ever saw him afterwards. 'Course he might a fell in love with some rich Mexican woman, but's long's he didn't come back to put a stop to his wife's pension it was perfectly satisfactry. She got six dollars a month, which was more'n he ever give her in a year. I tell you war's got its good side for us poor weak wimmen.

Do? What did grandfather Hicks do? Land sakes, child, you don't know how funny that sounds. He was a dreadful busy man, up at breakfust ev'ry mornin', off fishin' in th' summer an' gunnin' in th' Winter. Busy? He was th' busiest man in th' whole country

"What's that? Did he ever git lost? How? O, way off in th' woods? I should say not. No, sir-ee, not your great-great-grandad. You see, he never went so fur away he couldn't git back in time for dinner an' supper.

But he was a hero? W[illegible]at oh, nit goin' to th[illegible] was some as said he was a hero an' they didn't [illegible] war. They said any man as could live fifteen years [illegible] his wife's name, was [illegible]

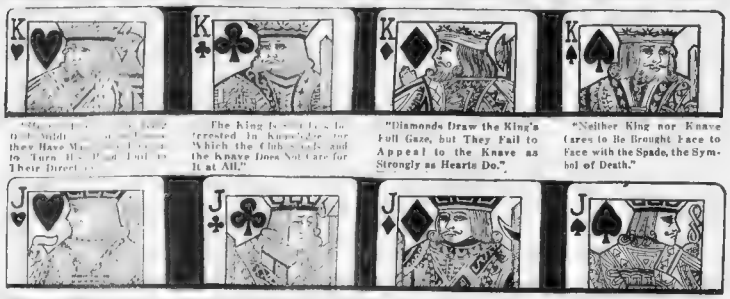
Curious and Little Known Facts About PLAYING CARDS and Their Ancient Significance



"Diamonds Draw the King's Full Gaze, but They Fail to Appeal to the Knave as Strongly as Hearts Do."

"Neither King nor Knave Cares to Be Brought Face to Face with the Spade, the Symbol of Death."

D

"In the Ancients the Four Emblems Used on Its Face Represented the Four Classes of Society. Would That Mankind Had Learned the Lesson Which the Cards Teach and Forgotten the Rest!"

thing that all men know is com-

the trail is followed, there is always. It is acknowledged, practically this same unity, another idea, another person, another something—puts itself right in between the two parallels—and the only way to get around it is to go clear back to the beginning and work up again from the bottom. By then it may be time to lay down the eight, and there you will find a second obstacle in the same position as the first only at the other end of the line—two obstacles in line with each other making another line, another direction, a third crossing, to reinforce the first two.

Can you see the idea—the idea of symbolizing life and its affairs by a series of numbers placed in various positions relative to each other? It isn't easy. You have to think over it.

The ancients thought over it a long time. They made it a study. It was both an art and a science with them. They passed from the eight-step to the nine, and again they had an intrusion of a new individual between the two parallel lines of existence-bearers, we'll say, the positive and the negative, male and the female, an obstacle from each, and disappointment to one's hopes and progress from whichever way one might start. Then they passed to the ten, two parallel rows of fours (the symbol of completed life), with two individuals in the center, a third direction as it were passing down between and leading its re-enforcement. This, said they, symbolized the final stage of the great human struggle. It is the emblem of success. It adds up to ten—the one with a cipher after it, or one complete unit, nothing more to add. Another step, and one is in the mild of a maze of mathematical complications.

For instance, suppose you have grasped the idea of one, two, three, four, and so on, and that you have the respective numbers out on the table before you. Must you not ask yourself at the very beginning which of the suits you should put out, the red or the black, the hearts or clubs or diamonds or spades? And then if you think back over the first part of the article you will remember that the red meant day and the black meant night, the hearts meant love and the clubs meant wisdom or knowledge, and so on. Are you to infer that when you have a one or an ace before you, you must think of it as a one or an ace of daylight or night; a one or an ace of love or of wealth or death? And must all the other cards be thought over in the same complicated manner?

Precisely! That's the way the ancients did. They had a system of distributing the cards so that when the two separate bundles of numbers got into certain relations with each other they meant certain things, and in other relations they meant certain other things.

Furthermore, the ancients had a way of working out the cards after the period of practice and further study was passed. Assigning a particular card to all the days of the year, assigning the card to the fifty-two weeks of the year, and the twelve months represented by the kings, queens and knaves, or for the matter of that, the fifty-two multiplied by the four suits, will the joker, gives the full calendar of the year. Then, in connection with the gaming house of the period, with the temples and the churches, is told the whole story of human life and its ideals.

Take the ace of hearts, for instance. That's one, meaning an individual, a beginning, or in an exalted way it may stand for the One, the Deity, the all-including Everything. Then you lay down a two spot, and that stands for another individual, or a second beginning, or a second idea, or, religiously considered, for the Deity expressing himself in earthly form. Then you make it a three, and that stands for one person standing between two others, for one idea with two other ideas around it, for one purpose with two purposes pulling away from it, or from a religious point of view, it stands for the union of Father and the Divine Mother, producing the Son. Lastly, you make it a four-spot, and there you have two two's lined up alongside of each other, making a square, rounding out a complete form, expressing a complete idea, standing, as the old card philosophers had it, for life itself.

All the rest of the ten non-picture cards are merely duplications or elaborations. The five is the four with an additional one in the centre. The one is at the crossing of the diagonals. It represents, as it were, the starting point to roads, where a man may stand bewildered and undecided in which of the four corners of the world he will go. The six is two sets of three lined up in parallels, so that they protect each other and help each other in struggling with the three sides of the average individuality.

In the seven-spot, an obstacle—another unity, another idea, another person, another something—puts itself right in between the two parallels—and the only way to get around it is to go clear back to the beginning and work up again from the bottom. By then it may be time to lay down the eight, and there you will find a second obstacle in the same position as the first only at the other end of the line—two obstacles in line with each other making another line, another direction, a third crossing, to reinforce the first two.

What The Stars Predict For Madeleine Force's Second Romance

Remarkable Parallel in the Difficulties That Beset Both Marriage Ceremonies and Other Extraordinary Similarities That Make Astrology Fear Another Tragedy Menaces Her Happiness

Mrs. William K. Dick.
Astrology Declares That the Malevolent Astral Influences Which Beset Both Her Marriages with Difficulties and Widowed Her On Her First Honeymoon Will Leave Further Marks on Her Life.

By Prof. Sothnos Letillier,
the Famous Astrologer.

FEW romances have ever attracted more widespread interest than that in which Madeleine Force, the rich and beautiful young widow of the late John Jacob Astor, became the bride of William K. Dick, the Brooklyn multimillionaire.

This interest is only natural, in view of the prominence of both and social position, and of the tragic circumstances which added the sixth to her first romance when the Titanic went down. And it acquires added zest from the fact that to claim her childhood sweetheart for her second husband she is said to have taken part of the world, with a cable to her at Colonel Astor's death.

Then, too, her second marriage has been beset with difficulties so similar to those which her first encountered as to constitute a most remarkable coincidence.

Her first marriage was solemnized in defiance of the laws of the church. Bishops and priests of all the leading denominations refused to sanction it on account of Colonel Astor's previous divorce. As a result the wedding had to be postponed from day to day while a nation-wide search was made for a clergyman careless enough of the opinion of the church to perform the ceremony.

The part that divorced Mrs. Astor to the altar a second time was only a little less difficult. It is said that her mother strongly opposed the marriage to Mr. Dick, holding that the stern terms of Colonel Astor's will imposed altogether too high a price to pay for even so rich and in every way desirable a husband.

"Better a lifelong widowhood than to sacrifice the wealth and social prestige your marriage to Colonel Astor brought," it was the opinion of the deceased with which it was the mother's duty to agree. But Mrs. Astor's love was too much for Mrs. Force finally had to give her reluctant consent to the marriage.

Last time there was no ground for opposition on the part of the church. Mrs. Astor, with painful recollections of the unpleasantness which had marred her first wedding day, superintended the arrangements for the second ceremony herself and fondly hoped that it would prove a success. She had reckoned, however, without due consideration for the laws of the State of Maine, and, consequently, the date had to be postponed to the great embarrassment and inconvenience of all concerned.

Even those who are not accustomed to paying much heed to such things cannot help being struck with the remarkable coincidence furnished by the difficulties which beset Madeleine Force's path to the altar each time she treads it. What is the significance of this strange similarity of circumstances? Can it mean that this second romance is likely to end as dismally as the first did? That is what I have asked the stars to tell.

No more convincing proof of the value of astrology could be asked than that which is revealed by a study of the stars that rule Mrs Dick. They point so clearly and convincingly to all the important things which have already befallen her that we may well accept with confidence their message regarding what the future holds in store.

Mrs. Dick's horoscope presents a curious interweaving of good and evil influences, which are destined to repeat themselves over and over again. Each seven or eight years in her life brings a crisis which will make for the greatest happiness or unhappiness. The stars show that her fourteenth year was an eventful for a girl of that age as the year 1911-1912 was for the woman of twenty-one, who, within nine months married one of America's richest men, became a widow, narrowly missed death herself in a great ocean disaster, and soon after was blessed with her first child. In two or three years from now she may look for a series of events that will have an even more marked influence on her fate.

The oriental section of Mrs. Dick's chart discloses Jupiter beclouded and sinister, but in the west we find Saturn, sinister and forbidding. The latter position in the marriage house has for ill-omen significant part in her life. It has cast and it has taken away. It was Saturn that placed and placed at her elbow [illegible] all through [illegible] and years of [illegible] forbidding drabs and grays that finally become hopeless black.

Her first marriage came particularly under the domination of Saturn. It was the influence of this unfavorable planet which interposed all the difficulties in the way of her union to Colonel Astor.

From Left to Right, Mrs. Dick's Own Horoscope, That of Her First Wedding Day and That of Her Second. The First Two Foretold the Titanic Disaster as Well as the Troubles That Marred Both Her Romances and All Three Foreshadow Still Further Unhappiness for Her.

William K. Dick—a Man of a Type Very Similar to the Late Col. Astor, and, According to Astrology, the Only Kind of Man Col. Astor's Widow Could Possibly Marry.

On the day she was married at Newport, in 1911, the malignant Saturn was just stealing above the horizon and Uranus occupied the house that rules ocean voyages, in evil square to Venus, ruler of the scheme and in opposition to Neptune, the ruler of the sea. This menacing combination foreshadowed the tragic end of the romance that came the following April in the icy waters of the Atlantic.

Further promise of this trip to Europe and its unhappy termination could have been plainly seen in the evil aspect of the Moon with Neptune and in the fact of Uranus being in the house of foreign journeys. In fact, if the stars have any advice that Mrs. Dick should heed more than [illegible] travel, whether on land or water, must always be fraught with the greatest peril both for herself and for those nearest and dearest to her.

Another portent of Saturn in the marriage house is unequivocally that of widowhood. In the case of Mrs. Dick's first marriage it was borne out with startling quickness, because the directional moon crept nearer and nearer the point of evil augury and reached it at exactly the hour when the ill-fated Titanic crashed into the [illegible].

The return of Saturn, as [illegible] well know, has the habit of repeating itself at regular intervals, and there is good reason to believe that this will be the case with Mrs. Dick's life. That it has already begun to show its evil force again is shown by her [illegible] decision to her last marriage and by the embarrassing postponement of the ceremony at Bar Harbor.

Is this an indication that tragedy will mar the second romance as it did the first? There seems little doubt of it. But as to when this will occur the message of the stars is not so clear. Very probably it may come in 1918 or 1919, when Mrs. Dick's fate passes under the malevolent influence of the same Saturn that ruled it in the memorable years of 1911 and 1912.

The probability of the repetition of a similar ceremony picture on the screen of Fate is made all the stronger by the fact that the second wedding day was ruled by exactly the same astral conditions which governed the first. The menace, however, may be avoided, or at least neutralized, provided Mrs. Dick proves strong enough to resist the powerful lure the sea has for her.

By Dr. Leonard Keene Hirshberg, A. B.

[illegible] could the need of corsets even if we overlook the Darwinian theory that our remote ancestors were made gods because they were hippos. Artists have delighted, from the [illegible] the perfect [illegible] and for her discovery [illegible] which [illegible] statutes of Praxiteles as the types [illegible] figure to be cultivated by [illegible] Yet the indubitable fact remains that the [illegible] A word about corsets of later centuries B. C. All [illegible] would be wear [illegible] The absence of the [illegible] not necessarily indicative [illegible] of the women of Oriental [illegible] advancement of [illegible] and morally [illegible]

[illegible] VIII. [illegible] establishment of [illegible] reigning monarchs [illegible] added to the repute [illegible] fashion centre, and [illegible] became standard [illegible] points. [illegible] fection finally swept [illegible] bone curvers that [illegible] the [illegible] stead the [illegible] and yielding corset [illegible] forerunner of the [illegible] were cut very [illegible] unduly short in [illegible] most pronouncingly [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ugly in line, [illegible] scathing perhaps [illegible] the fortress-like [illegible] le Medici and not [illegible] eighteenth century [illegible] barrier, almost a quarter [illegible] thick, to withstand the [illegible] an of the extreme lacing [illegible] riod.

Heavy drill and coutil came [illegible] establishment of [illegible] always the shape remained [illegible] the same, the encased figure [illegible] contour of the hour-glass [illegible] shape sanctioned by custom [illegible] fashion and remarkably [illegible] to women the world over, [illegible] all variations, for centuries.

[illegible] ght be uncomfortable, inconvenient [illegible] eath-destroying—everything adverse [illegible] it had been said in an attempt, [illegible] reason or force women to discard it; but the universal and honorable [illegible] tom of corset wearing continued, despite writers who "launched sweeping anathemas on the very stays by the aid of which their wives and daughters were made presentable in society, and who always quoted largely from scribes of ancient date when corsets were of a stubborn and unyielding character."

Public opinion has been hardly less stubborn and unyielding, until the advent of a new type of corset suddenly confuted old theories, confounded critics, and proved that beauty of form and physical comfort are not incompatible.

It is to a French woman that we owe the supreme achievement of the modern corset; for Sarah Bernhardt has been generally acclaimed the originator of the straight-bust type. That is, it was devised under her personal direction when she was preparing to play "L'Aiglon." In the clothes of the ill-fated son of Napoleon her figure took on straight, boyish lines. Hips, as feminine attributes, were eliminated, the bust line in the old sense disappeared, and the torso was flattened and straightened beyond all semblance to the contour. Presto! what had once been the curveful figure of a woman of middle age became an alluring vision of youth incarnate, sex unconscious, physically free, and spelling a new and potential corset era for all women.

The courageous Sarah has since said that she had no thought of changing corset shapes, or becoming the means of [illegible] to her sisters' physical [illegible] for the time being [illegible] sentimental [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] King of Rome. It just happened.

Since then—almost [illegible] decades ago—women all over the civilized world have been wearing boyish corsets. And this, too, despite the fact that the new type does not possess the points which have given rise to corset use and permanency throughout ages—the accentuation of physical lines; but seeks to modify those very lines beneath the straight, tube-like model of the present time.

The appearance of the modern corset must be written down as coincident with the accelerated interests and activities of woman in all branches of social, philanthropic, commercial and artistic matters of the present age—woman's age. She has emerged from the influence of mid-Victorian corseting, inseparably associated with horse-hair upholstery, black walnut and marble-topped furniture, into an era whose foundations are inseparable from corset transition and corset progress.

After all, what makes the corset a corset? Is it the fabric, the bonings or the laces? Assuredly the fact of a corset lies in its laces. To speak of one is to think of the other.

It has been the adjustment of the figure, by means of strings and cords, to the corset that has made possible the attenuated waist, the exaggerated hip and bust width that for many years contributed the standard outline of female beauty.

Look at any illustration of a corset of, say, twenty-five years ago; the laces spread out from the waist up, and from the waist down, but are very decidedly "nipped in" at the waist itself. Loosen the laces and the waist spreads, the bust drops and the hips and abdomen become less prominent. To have the fashionable figure one had to pay strict regard to one's laces. Nothing else mattered.

Under the old conditions self-lacing was an extremely difficult matter. Indeed, if one may judge by the caricatures of the time, the entire feminine contingent of the family frequently assisted at the formal function of corset lacing. The painful operation over, the laces were secured in knots and double knots, so that they would not break inopportunely or even "give" the slightest fraction of an inch in the wearing.

Small wonder that "anti-lacing societies" were formed by physicians "to induce young men not to require this self-immolation at the hands of women, and to induce the latter to abandon a practise so destructive of their own happiness and so detrimental to posterity."

Through all the vicissitudes of the corset, there has been no attempt to substitute buttons, hooks, or other devices in place of the laced strings. To do so would immediately defeat the purpose of the garment and convert it into a corset cover or some sort of reform dress model that would be the signal for women to fight shy of it.

Strings they have wanted, and strings they have had—strings with back adjustments only up to within a few years, when the reconstructed shape of women, superinduced by the adoption of the straight-front model, called for a reversal of the usual custom.

This, the last detail of the corset to be influenced by the prime modern requirements of comfort and convenience, had its inception in Paris, its perfecting in America and its acceptance practically everywhere.

The sponsors of this new type claim for it correct lines, anatomically. It seems reasonable that the abdominal lines should be those most amenable to the straightening influences of laces. The back of the figure is "fixed," so to speak. The lines may be corrected and restrained, but not materially altered. Every maker of corsets, every seller of corsets and every wearer of corsets knows the reverse is true of the figure front and corset front.

Women who have a careful regard for their apparel know it is essential to the life and beauty of the corset that it be unlaced at night and laced afresh each morning. These beneficial performances are easiest accomplished in a corset of the newest type.

Where, heretofore, for many years the shape of the corset and the strength of the bones were factors to be studied by prospective wearers, one pays less attention to such details now, but, instead, places insistence on the style of the corset in regard to the placement of the lace.

When the model with the front lace was first projected, it was prohibitively high-priced. For a long while it was the exclusive output of private corsetieres with wealthy patrons ready and willing to pay for the new and astonishingly comfortable figure moulder. Now there are models manufactured wholesale which are modest in price and fully as comfortable and figure beneficially as costly pioneers.

This in America. In France and in England to-day—not to go too far afield only women of the upper and upper middle classes are well corseted. There are expensive corsets and cheap corsets, but rarely any grades between.

American women have always been considered excellent dressers, at home and abroad. Shall some of the credit be given to the corset—the modern corset?—which after its puny birth in Paris, was nurtured in this country, re-crossed the ocean in its early youth and conquered the amazed French woman, from whose country for centuries had come all corsets worthy of the name. Thence to London, the last stronghold of the old type of stay, to be finally accepted by English women, whose reputation for conservatism is world-wide.

Queen Victoria in a straight-front corset might have been as ardent a suffragette as Mrs. Pankhurst; and even the present Queen of England might advocate votes for women along with collarless street frocks, picture hats and other apparent inconsistencies of the times could she be induced to part with stays that retain the indented waist line and the high bust of a now almost obsolete type.

Although the lines of the corset have been radically altered and fabrics lightened and made more exquisite to the touch and sight, the backlaced idea of the earliest French precursors of the modern type has persisted up to within the last few years. It has, in fact, been the very last detail to yield to modern invention, and it may be considered the salient link connecting the corset as it has been with the corset as it shall be.

By all means, let us give credit to the latter-day corset. Long may it flourish!

Ought We Be Paid for Our Social Charms?

The Duke of Manchester Argues for a Schedule of Remuneration for Pleasant People, Clever Talkers, Actresses, Beauties and So On Who Customarily Give More Entertainment Than They Receive

The Duke of Manchester.

Mlle. Gaby Deslys, Who Once Announced That She Makes a Regular Charge for Her Company at Social Affairs.

By His Grace the Duke of Manchester

WHY should not persons of charm, beauties, clever talkers and all who have a talent for entertaining be paid for their attendance at social functions?

The laborer is worthy of his hire, and certainly it is a labor to go through some society affairs. The injury to digestion and the strain on the nerves entailed by staying out long dinners and receptions that don't interest one are enormous. No pay could adequately compensate one for going to them.

Some big affairs of the London season would be absolutely unendurable but for the presence of certain persons who can be charming in spite of the greatest [illegible]. The man or woman who can talk to you well [illegible] interestingly is certainly worth a large fee. The [illegible] who can be simply pleasant and tactful is worth less but distinctly worth paying. Remember that the average person at these affairs looks bored to death.

Rich people feel that they must give big entertainments. They spend money freely on food and drink and decorations, much of which is wasted. Let some one start to pay for brains and beauty, is my sentiment.

This train of thought has been aroused in me by the statement of a pretty and clever actress that she charges for her company at supper and other social affairs, according to a regular tariff. Certainly the plan is eminently just for actresses, and equally so for many other classes.

If you adopt as your profession the entertainment of society there is no particular reason why all the branches of entertainment should not be paid for. It cannot be said to be at all disreputable for instance, should not do any work except in the office, or, if she does that work out of the office she should not be paid for it, and from the moment that an actress or beauty is invited to an entertainment by somebody whom she does not know, either with the object of providing her host with entertaining conversation or, what some men appreciate, the glamour of being seen in a public place with a celebrity, I think she is just as much practising her profession as if she were behind the footlights.

I would like to say at once that I have no deep sympathy with the state of mind of a man who is anxious to be seen in the company of a charming actress (or any other celebrity), unless he has the pleasure of her personal acquaintance, and the notoriety acquired by merely being seen in a public place with a celebrity has, to put it [illegible] never appealed to me; but it is an undoubted fact that [illegible] many men who can extract pleasure from such [illegible] and I most distinctly think, should an [illegible] like on this form of overtime, her effort [illegible] be suitably rewarded.

[illegible] all innovations, I suppose it would cause a great deal of excitement at first, but when the practice has become common and a properly regulated scale of [illegible] recognized, there would be nothing more extraordinary in it than in paying some celebrated operatic singer a few thousand dollars to sing in your house for your guests.

Take the instance in Japan of the Geisha; people who don't know look upon a Geisha as a mere dancing girl or worse than probably of frivolous character. This is an entire misconception. She is a young girl most carefully trained from her childhood in all the recognized arts of entertaining—dancing, singing, playing on musical instruments, conversation and the intricacies of the tea service; but as long as she remains a Geisha she is morally guarded as carefully as the daughter of the most respectable family. Her role is simply and solely to entertain superlatively as entertainment is understood in Japan.

Of course it is just barely possible that even some of the most celebrated actresses would not care about this method of adding to their incomes; but I feel sure that there are many who will have no objection to turning an honest penny provided the honest penny is honestly easily earned.

It is not as if this is not being done every day in Society, only that at present it is not openly recognized.

[illegible] Englishmen and Americans [illegible] good dancers, good bridge players, but without enough money to figure, continually, as they do at entertainments of their own incomes, but [illegible] to forego their little bridge debts if they should happen to lose—or send so-and-so a new frock from time to time for the sake of adding their attractive personality to the good things offered to the other guests. It is [illegible] by which everyone benefits, the [illegible] lives in a style we [illegible] permit at the [illegible] merely displaying [illegible] gifts; the hostess [illegible] fact that [illegible] entertainment [illegible] and the [illegible] worked [illegible] ments.

[illegible] of course [illegible] the young [illegible] the [illegible] young man, the [illegible] apparent [illegible] and the [illegible] is willing [illegible] able to [illegible] worked [illegible] less; the [illegible] cotillon and [illegible] the hostess's set, is extremely useful to the women, and at the same time is a cause [illegible] no real anxiety to the [illegible] in every form of entertainment but [illegible] woman who is able to unburden [illegible] to an audience from which she [illegible] tention [illegible] helpful [illegible].

These [illegible] girls [illegible] They [illegible] and [illegible] fuel for [illegible] working [illegible] otherwise, the [illegible] helpful [illegible] knowledge [illegible] women [illegible] a picturesque figure seated on the [illegible] made Beach in Winter. And he also has his [illegible] type.

In addition to [illegible] the outdoor [illegible] too well—who [illegible]

Now surely all this goes to prove that [illegible] and consequently that the need is to [illegible] vided for. And it only needs some pioneer [illegible] best one or two if wanted to) to start a [illegible] fully thought out Social Entertainment [illegible] properly indexed list of employes at [illegible] of charges.

The present social entertainment is only of [illegible] ance to the would-be hostess. The [illegible] would provide for the wants of that wholly [illegible] would-be host.

I have tried very hard since the question [illegible] itself to me to think out a specimen schedule of charges in this latter branch, and I feel convinced that HISTORY teaches that the mosquito has been the [illegible] scourge of mankind from the earliest times.

Science has recently demonstrated that the mosquito can be exterminated. It [illegible] co-operate in the gigantic, but entirely possible [illegible] ridding the earth of this nuisance.

Presumably there were mosquitoes in the Garden of Eden; and if so, Adam and Eve, for obvious reasons, must have found them a serious drawback to the delights of that paradise.

Certainly they are very ancient insects. They existed on the earth millions of years before the first human beings arrived, a fact proved by the discovery of fossil specimens preserved in the strata of rocks. One species of the Tertiary Age (happily extinct) was much bigger than any modern mosquito. Naturalists have named it Culex [illegible], or "giant of the damned." It must have been a terror.

According to Herodotus, the ancient historian, there were prodigious numbers of mosquitoes in Egypt in the days of the Pharaohs. They were such an affliction, indeed, that rich men built tall towers and slept on the roofs thereof—the habit of these insects being not to fly more than thirty feet or so above the ground; though in modern houses they commonly [illegible] from floor to floor or go up in elevators [illegible] the top of a skyscraper.

only harm the bat did was to eat pieces out of hams and bacon left in the smoke house, and as it is fat that bats require to tide them over the Winter, they will eat nothing but the fat and leave the meat alone

By careful examination of the guano deposits of the bats, Dr. Campbell estimated that each bat consumed every day not less than 500 mosquitoes. If there are 500,000 bats in a roost, they would destroy in one night at least 250,000,000 mosquitoes. It can readily be seen how difficult it would be for these insects to thrive while these bats were in the neighborhood

The guano also showed clearly that the bats lived principally upon mosquitoes. When analyzed the guano was found to be made up in large part from the shell and indigestible portions of the mosquito

To estimate the profits that can be derived from bat roosts, it is interesting to examine the report of a dealer in guano, Robert F. Marbach, of Bracken, Texas. He works two bat caves, and the amount of guano obtained averages about a carload annually from each cave. Allowing thirty tons to the carload, and the price of guano being about $30 a ton, it will be seen that one roost alone turns out a profit of $900 a year But these caves are very big roosts, much bigger probably than any municipal roost would be. But even a small roost erected near swampy land would return a handsome profit on the investment, in addition to the valuable service it would render in eliminating dis...

A bat roost must be built in harmony with the habits of the bat or it will prove a failure. Ernest Thompson Seton, the famous naturalist, made an attempt to build a roost that would attract bats, but he could not induce them to occupy the structure

Dr. Campbell overcame the difficulty by spreading guano about in the artificial roost, thus giving it the odor familiar to the bat. The bat has a wonderful sense of smell, which it employs to find its home in distant caves. When the familiar scent was wafted from the artificial roost, it led the bats to investigate and finding the structure a suitable home, with the typical bat odor, they were convinced it was a safe place to lodge. They preferred the new roost to their old habitation in the caves, because it was close to their feeding grounds and saved them the trouble of long journeys

An artificial roost keeps off the natural enemies of the bat, the coons, opossums, wildcats, skunks and chicken snakes. Protected from these enemies the bat breeds rapidly. Shortly after a baby bat is born it clings mechanically to the mother's body but often it falls to the ground. In the caves when such a thing happens the wildcats and other animals destroy the young bat and its mother, which usually flies down to save its offspring

Although caves and caverns are the natural homes of the bat, an artificial roost is superior to these places, not merely because of the added protection afforded the bats, but on account of the greater amount of guano obtained. Guano found in caves is not as valuable as that produced in properly constructed roosts. Winds and rains and fogs are constantly filling the caves with moisture, and the moisture has a bad effect on the guano, reducing its quality considerably.

There are more bats in the vicinity of hills and mountains than in the lowlands, because the caves, which are the best homes the bat can find, are usually located in those regions.

Party Dresses
By Lady Duff Gordon

A Charming Walking Hat—"Halo" Variety

How to Harmonize With the Outdoor Party, the Indoor Party---And Why All Dresses Must Necessarily Be Party Dresses Anyway

LADY DUFF-GORDON, the famous "Lucile" of London, and foremost creator of fashions in the world, writes each week the fashion article for this newspaper, presenting all that is newest and best in styles for well-dressed women.

By Lady Duff-Gordon
("LUCILE")

HERE are some party dresses. I have been asked to write on this subject often in this newspaper. I am tempted to write a little about it.

Fashion is a thing that a dress for [illegible] ought to be something quite distinctive and [illegible]—must [illegible] what "Sunday-go-to-meeting" clothes.

All dresses [illegible] more or less. Some [illegible] pleasant party and sometimes not so pleasant [illegible] always [illegible] all the [illegible].

When you "dress for a party" you [illegible] are going to [illegible] which will [illegible] rather [illegible] whom you expect. And that is [illegible] enough to [illegible] long the [illegible] will [illegible]. When you [illegible] yourself in the [illegible] especially up to [illegible] as beautiful as possible. For after all [illegible] is one's best [illegible].

The way you look in the morning usually determines the whole day for you. If you can regard yourself and say to yourself: "Don't I look nice and pretty?" you start in with a feeling of self-confidence and amiability that will give you impetus over all the bumps of the hours coming.

If you are going to meet some one after your hours to yourself, it does not matter whether you are simply going to take a walk or go to some "function," it is still a party. And it is your duty to dress in a way that will make you satisfied and at the same time either satisfy or raise the envy of everybody else you meet, and so it goes along until it is time to turn out the lights and go to bed.

What I want to bring out is that there is no time of the day or night when a woman can afford to be anything but well dressed. By that I do not mean elaborately or extravagantly dressed at all. It is not expensive, unless you want to make it so, to be in that desirable condition.

A woman who thinks that "any old sort of thing" is all right to have on until she has to meet people is the kind who gets slipshod mentally, as well as physically. She has one standard of conduct for herself when alone and another for herself when among others. This makes for artificiality and insincerity. The real person is sincere, simple and harmonious all the time, whether alone or not.

One ought not to have "Sunday-go-to-meeting" clothes or "Sunday-go-to-meeting" manners, and one oughtn't to have "party" manners any more than one ought to have "party" dresses.

I know that this may not seem to you much like fashion, but as I have often remarked, the impulses that underlie fashion do not deal so much with dresses as with humanity.

With these few thoughts for your consideration I submit to you these photographs of some "party" dresses which are harmonious and charming, whether one goes to the orthodox party or not.

Just a few words about the Summer furs. I am afraid that they are going the extravagant limit, and there is no reason why this charming mode should be made unpopular in this way. Fur like everything else almost, can be used perfectly harmoniously as a decoration, whether it is Summer or Winter. The straw hat trimmed with fur has appeared as a natural consequence of the fashion. There are some that are charming. Ermine is the garniture most in evidence, but any fur can be used if it is done harmoniously.

I must, however, frown upon the fur muff for Summer. Little chiffon muffs, or the flower muff, are both pretty. The fur muff, however, brings in a Winter note that is very disharmonious to the Summer costume.

The new fur buttons are pretty, and can be used with telling effect on a number of gowns.

Fitch furs are attractive. I do not like for Summer the mixed furs. Plain furs are better, and in every case the fur itself should be subordinated to the whole effect. It is, after all, only an interesting note. There is no utility at all to it, and if it is allowed to dominate the whole costume it turns a pretty Summer dress into a hybrid Winter concoction.

A boon to tender skins

For more than thirty years Sylpho-Nathol has been used by New England bankers and by leading hospitals as a safe and sure antiseptic and healer.

These are some of the uses for which they have found it so good:

A quick relief from sunburn

Bathe with a solution of a few drops in a bowl of warm water. This will bring immediate and grateful relief.

After shaving

Bathe the face and it will relieve that smarting skin.

The U. S. Navy has pointed out that many so-called antiseptics have no germ-killing value. Their exact use for

Dear Billy
I wonder is murder a sin under all circumstances. Smithy just got busy and choosed me and then wished himself on the Browns. There are the Blacks and the Whites and the Greens and the Grays all living in the neighborhood and he has to pick me. I am going to be guilty of justifiable homicide before long maybe I can kill him with Kindness
